WE NOMINATE

Charles Francis Westoff, Chairman of Princeton University's newly-launched Department of Sociology and Associate Director of the Office of Population Research, who thrice in the past six months has made front-page news across the country as co-director of the 1965 Fertility Study, a survey of a national sample of 5,600 wives sponsored by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. From this pioneering undertaking have come meticulously-documented data throwing new light on the attitudes, intention and behavior of the American wife toward fertility control, abortion and family planning—basic elements in charting and analyzing population trends.

Over the weekend at a conference at the University of Michigan devoted to "Fertility and Family Planning: A World View," the 40-year old Westoff and his associate, Norman B. Ryder, of the University of Wisconsin, pointed out that the "norm of fertility control has become universal in America." In general, their findings revealed that, regardless of religious preference or devoutness, race, education, income, husband's occupation or area of residence, American wives appear to be approaching virtually total acceptance of contraception in one form or another. This trend has been substantiated by three different national samples of married women in 1955, 1960 and 1965.

Among Westoff's principal research projects has been a longitudinal study of social and psychological factors affecting fertility, initiated in 1955 under grants from the Carnegie Corporation, the Milbank Memorial Fund and the Population Council. So far this has resulted in two major volumes of which he is the senior author, "Family Growth in Metropolitan America" and "The Third Child." The former, based on interviews with married women six months after the birth of a second child, analyzes factors associated with desired family size, birth intervals, and fertility planning success. This year a third round of interviews with the same mothers will be concluded to pinpoint the factors determining completed family size.

The versatile Westoff, a full professor at Princeton since 1962 and formerly Chairman of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at New York University's Washington Square College, is widely known as a teacher on both the undergraduate and graduate levels. One of his undergraduate courses is concerned with such complex matters as the relationship of population growth and economic development, birth and death rates and their measurement. the life table, social and economic factors affecting fertility and mortality, urbanization, migration and population policy.

A native of New York City and a World War II naval veteran, Westoff was graduated with an A.B. degree in international relations from Syracuse University in 1949. He remained at Syracuse for his master's in sociology and received his Ph. D. at the Unievrsity of Pennsylvania in 1953. While carrying forward research on an Indianapolis Fertility Study for his doctoral dissertation, and later as a staff member with the Milbank Memorial Fund, Westoff chalked up a major advance in demographic methods by directly interviewing women about such matters as the number of children they wanted. Up to that point, Westoff recalls, "demographic material was all from secondary sources such as the U.S. Census."

For his contributions in areas in which the advancement of knowledge has often been stalled by taboos and misundertsandings; for his lucid explanations of such phenomena as the declining United States birth rate; for ever seeking new, and more reliable, "methods of social research;" he is TOWN TOPICS nominee as

PARKING?

Ordinance Proposes Changes. A new ordinance, adding parking space here, eliminating parking space there, opening new channels of traffic to accommodate the changing flow of time, was scheduled for introduction by Borough Council this Tuesday.

Public hearing on the new ordinance is tentatively scheduled for Tuesday, December 12. Copies will be available in Borough Hall for examination from Wednesday, in case you want to find out precisely what has been proposed for a particular street.

The ordinance is the result of a year-long study by Administrator Robert F. Mooney, Engineer Thomas Cawley and Police Chief Peter J. McCrohan.

Exactly one year ago, in November of 1966, they were asked by mayor and council to go over the town foot by foot, and bring the traffic ordinance up to date.

More Later. Although parking garages, the expansion of existing ground-level parking lots, the channelization of Nassau Street through the use of painted lane-markings, and actual construction changes in Borough streets were also part of the study, Mr. Mooney declined this week to talk about any proposed changes except those spelled out in the parking ordinance to be introduced Tuesday.

Major parking changes in the new ordinance are:

Nassau Street. From Vandeventer to Moore, meters will be changed from one hour to half an hour. Longer-term parkers are invited to use the Park Place lot behind the stores.

Bayard Lane. No parking, stopping or standing will be allowed for the entire length of Bayard Lane in the Borough. This will wipe out the present two hour zone on the west between Stockton and Boudinot.

Palmer Square. Six 30-minute meters will be installed in front of the post office where there are no meters at present. The no-meter area has been "abused," Mr. Cawley stated.

University Place. Parking will be shifted from the west side, in front of the street's houses, to the east side. It will be prohibited, however, in front of the University Store.

Mr. Cawley pointed out that cars exiting from Edwards Place and the University Store parking lot cannot see oncoming traffic from either left or right. With parking completely removed from that side of University, these cars will have clear sightlines.

The Borough hopes to persuade the University Store to change the exit-entrance design of its Edwards Place parking lot. The Borough suggests that the "exit" be left where it is, on Edwards Place, and the entrance be moved from Edwards Place to the northernmost corner of the lot so that cars would enter from University Place.

Parking on the east side of University would not start until 200 feet south of the traffic light at the Nassau Street intersection.

Wiggins Street. Between Vandeventer and Witherspoon, the present two-hour zone will be eliminated, and no parking, stopping or standing will be allowed at all.

This will mean a safer exit from Vandeventer into Wiggins. Mr. Cawley explained, especially for drivers making a left turn and heading toward Witherspoon. The change, of course, is the result of the increased traffic generated by the new "Jackson Street" extension of Wiggins.

Witherspoon Street. Parking will be shifted from the west side where the houses are, to the east side next to the cemetery. This will give a clearer sight-line for cars emerging from Maclean. Mr. Cawley said, and it will also produce more parking space because the east side has no driveways or cross-streets. Also, this will bring Witherspoon into line with the Township, where parking is also allowed only on the east side.

Quarry and Green. These streets, which have had unlimited parking on one side, will now have two-hour parking only.

Harrison and Harrison North. Parking will be prohibited on both sides for the entire length of the street in the Borough. At present, there are occasional zones where parking is allowed. The new regulation is traceable to the sharp increase in traffic volume on Harrison.

John. This street will be made one-way north (toward the Township), for its entire length.

Jefferson, Moore and Hawthorne. Unlimited parking is allowed now, but the new ordinance will limit parking to two hours. The new restriction is aimed chiefly at high school students who drive to school and park all day.

Avalon Place. There is now "no parking" except on Sunday, from the YMCA driveway to the old John Street. The new ordinance will remove all Sunday parking from Avalon, and transfer it to both sides of the new Wiggins Street. This will provide parking for the First Baptist Church congregation during Sunday services.

On Witherspoon, the ordinance provides for an extension of the present loading zone near Witten's south to include the curbing in front of Princeton Clothing. This is to enable trucks to maneuver and perhaps — Mr. Cawley fervently hopes — to park in the Borough's lot.

The new ordinance, based as it is on old statutes, has one stern reminder:

"Every person propelling a push cart, or riding a bicycle or riding, leading or herding any animal . . . and every person driving an animal-drawn vehicle . . . ."

Well, the idea is you've got to obey the laws just like everybody else.

COME TO MY HOUSE

On Christmas Tour, "Christmas in Princeton," the annual house tour sponsored by the Association of the New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute, will be held Tuesday, December 5 from 10 to 4.

Tickets, including luncheon, are $7.50 and may be purchased from Mrs. Maurice F. Healy Jr., 191 Library Place, or at any of the homes on the day of the tour.

Four homes will be open to the public. "Springdale," at 86 Mercer, home of Dr. James I. McCord, president of Princeton Theological Seminary, and Mrs. McCord, was built in 1846 for Richard Stockton and has been the residence of all Seminary presidents since 1903.

"Springdale's drawing room is furnished in walnut dating from the 1870s and its library is in a wing which contains a circular staircase. All door-knobs and keyholes in the house are silver.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. Lee H. Bristol Jr., 210 Mercer, has a 40-foot living-room with two grand pianos. (Dr. Bristol is president of Westminster Choir College.)

Near the door is a Mason and Hamlin reed organ which belonged to Dr. Bristol's ancestor, Thomas Hastings, who composed the hymn tune, "Rock of Ages." On one wall hangs the 1786 music diploma of Johann Heinrich Cattus, a court musician who was Mrs. Bristol's great-great-grandfather.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Chauncey, down a curving drive from Rosedale Road, has been enlarged since it was built in 1910. The property was bought in 1955 by Educational Testing Service as the official residence of its presidents.

Paintings by Peter Cook and a group of Chinese rice paper watercolors over 200 years old, are part of the Chauncey's art collection. A French heirloom dinner service, antique silver and candlesticks are in the diningroom.

Antiques from 18th-century England and America furnish "Golden Hill," home of Mr. and Mrs. John Tassie, 233 Carter Road. Queen Anne pieces in the dining room include an unusual sideboard made from yew, satinwood and cherry.

In the sunroom are watercolors done about 1709, and in the breakfast room will be a table set with Lenox plates decorated by Paul Brown, each with a different hunting scene.

A Christmas boutique will be held during the day of the tour at "Drumthwacket" on the Lawrenceville Road, and light lunch will be served there starting at 11:30.

NEW SCHOOL BUS FOR PRINCETON? Well, not quite. This is the school bus that served Valley Road School back in the early '20s, and considering the fact that the school board doesn't have any money left this year to bus the kindergarten-fifth graders who live a mile and a half from school — well, anybody got a horse? Identifyable in this photograph are, front left to right: Margaret Waag, Alberta Gibbs Nixon, Sara Tindale Sweeny, Homer Gibbs, Martin Tindall; next row, Philip Golden, John Golden, Jim Davidson, Mildred Wilhur; back row, George Gibbs, driver; Walter Golden, William Tindall, Edward Bastido, Maya Gibbs Vanarsdale, Mary Davidson Hahn, Helen Wiggins Kleiber, Viola Higgins Goeke.

"YES" TO SITE REVIEW in Township. After a three-hour public hearing Monday night, which prompted one lawyer to observe, "It's the only Township Committee meeting I ever attended where there are more architects than lawyers," Committee passed, 3-2 the site-plan review ordinance.

The two dissenters were Committeemen Harry J. Volwieder and William L. Wilson.

The ordinance has a three-year life span. In November, 1970, it can be renewed, or killed or amended, and it can be amended as the three years go along.

It sets up a five-man volunteer panel of experts — architects, landscape architects, city planners — who will sit down with the man, the firm, the institution that wants to build a building, and discuss preserving of the landscape, relating the building harmoniously to the terrain, planning driveways and parking, working out water drainage, utilities, advertising signs, exposed storage and the like.

The ordinance applies only to non-residential construction, although "multi-family residential" is included. The idea is to bring the builder before the new board while his plans are still wet, and before he has committed large sums of money to final drawings.

At Monday night's hearing, it was defended by Hans K. Sander, chairman of the Township Planning Board, and two board members, William Sutphin and Carl G. Lindbloom. The Planning Board approved the ordinance unanimously, and its representatives had some stout defending to do on Monday night.

Poll Reveals Support. Mr. Sander told Committee that a telephone poll of Princeton architects showed 19 in favor, eight opposed and two "don't knows," although he admitted that the local chapter of the American Institute of Architects voted 6-2 against the ordinance.

Architects John Diehl and Alfred Busselle spoke against the ordinance, architect Charles K. Agle, Perry Morgan, Philip Hall and William Short spoke in favor it.

Martin L. Beck, William H. Walker, Jeremiah Ford and James A. Kerr wrote letters favoring the ordinance, and Mr. Diehl pointed out to Committee that all except Mr. Beck are associated with Mr. Sander in the practice of architecture.

Also opposed were Princeton University (represented by C. Harrison Hill); Princeton Day School (represented by Hugh Wise); The Institute for Advanced Study and The Hun School (both via letter) and Opinion Research Corporation (represented by Frank Reiche).

The chief thrust of the objections was the question of whether you can legislate aesthetics, and how to define words like "harmonize." Also, institutions want to be free to build on their campuses and they protested inclusion in the same category as supermarkets and gas stations.

Mr. Hill, for the University, and several other speakers said that the University and various institutions have already established a good, early, working relationship with the Planning Board as it exists now, without any site-plan review board.

After this had been repeated several times, Township attorney Gordon Griffin said with some asperity that institutions have by no means always come in early with their plans.

"They come in here with plans far advanced, and then plead hardship because they say they've already invested so much money," Mr. Griffin charged.

Preservation of Values. "The question is — what are the interests of these institutions and what are the interests of this community? And of course, this is legislating aesthetics! There is nothing illegal about that, particularly if the legislation is tied to the preservation of property values. The Planning Board feels that this community needs a change in the development of its non-residential buildings — is a building in the interests of some institution, or is it in the interests of the public?"

"This meeting suggests the power of institutions," observed Serge Bonotto, 72 Henry Avenue. "We've heard from representatives of all the big ones, but there are no neighbors of Princeton Day School or the University here."

It was also charged, chiefly by Mr. Busselle, that the ordinance would stifle creativity, and eliminate anything that wasn't "colonial, with shutters." He said "this has been the history of design boards."

Road, an associate of the design firm of Clark and Rapuano, said "The risk of missing a really good design is very small compared to preventing bad design."

The ordinance does not control design or style at all, but Mr. Busselle suggested that could be the net effect.

Appeals Too Numerous? Under the ordinance's terms, parties may appeal a decision of review board or planning Board to Township Committee, and Mr. Wilson said in some alarm that he was afraid people who oppose something will turn Committee into "a town meeting of forensic remarks for everything they don't like, such as 'I don't like the Cage.'"

Mr. Wilson also said he was afraid of the litigation that would follow the ordinance. "We must provide legal fees in the '68 budget," he said.

And so he voted "no." Mr. Volweider said he thought the Township needed some control, but not this ordinance.

In other business, Committeeman John Wallace said the new sidewalk Master Plan might be ready by December, and asked deferment of plans for new sidewalks until then. He said that recreation officials had parking regulations for the south Community Park parking lot by the tennis courts, and Mr. Griffin said he would prepare an ordinance.

The State Division of Water Policy and Supply has told Houghton and Castoro, owners of a parcel on Alexander between the canal and Stony Brook, to remove all the fill they have dumped there by November 30. Administrator Joseph R. Nini reported the state's letter to Committee in the light of the new flood-plain ordinance.

Change of Temperature

The turkey's frozen now,
But wait!
He'll soon be sizzling
On my plate.

Sadly enough from his point of view, the turkey figures to be about the only thing that's hot on Thanksgiving Day.

Rain forecast for the middle of the week will be followed by cloudy, cold weather through Thursday. The weekend picture is a little brighter — the unadvertised rain that dampened the setting for Yale isn't expected to repeat for Dartmouth.

TO RECOUNT VOTES

In Borough Election. A recount of the votes in the close Borough election will be held this Wednesday morning.

Borough Democrats were granted a court order for the recount on Friday from Superior Court Judge George Barlow. The recounts will be for both mayor and councilmen, and will be made for all nine Borough districts, plus absentees. The cost to the Democrats is $81, already paid to the county.

Mayor Henry S. Patterson, Republican incumbent, defeated the Democratic contender, Archibald S. Alexander Jr., by 52 votes. In the Council race, Democrat James Andrews lost to Republican Frederick Peterson by only five votes.

Last week, Mayor Patterson announced that he planned to appoint Mr. Peterson to Council to fill the vacant seat of Enoch Durbin. He said early this week that he will make the appointment this Tuesday night at Council's November meeting anyway even though the next morning's recount may toss Mr. Peterson out.

In and Out? If the recount takes the victory from Mr. Peterson and gives it to Mr. Andrews, Mr. Peterson will go out of office on January 1, have served on Council for two whole meetings.

"It could be the shortest Council term on record," observed Mayor Patterson.

County election officials will make the machine recount at Mercer County Airport where election machines are stored, and the absentee ballot recount at the court house in Trenton. Observers from both Republican and Democratic parties in the Borough are expected to be present.

The count will be turned over to William Falcey, the county clerk. Frank Moody, deputy clerk of elections, says that recounts rarely turn up significant errors.

THREE STEAL SAFE

From King's Court Restaurant. Three Trenton men were apprehended in Highland Park early Wednesday morning, following a high-speed, 19 mile chase by Borough and Township police. They were charged with stealing a safe from the King's Court Restaurant, 28 Witherspoon Street.

Arrested and charged with breaking and entering, larceny, reckless driving and failing to stop for a police officer are James E. Patterson, 19; Albert L. Johnson, 20; and Kenneth Miller, 20. Police reported that they found in their car a 100-pound, 18 inch, unopened safe containing about $500 belonging to the restaurant, 20 bottles of liquor, a carton of cigarettes and five pounds of shrimp. "They didn't even have time to open one of the bottles," said Lt. Francis Maguire of the Borough police.

Patterson and Miller were taken to Trenton and later released on bail to await a preliminary hearing before Borough Magistrate Theodore T. Tams Jr. Johnson, a parollee, was held in Jail when his parole officer issued a detainer on him.

The trio is also believed by Hamilton police to be suspects in the robbery there the previous day of a mail truck. The victim was Royce L. Brasted, 47, of Trenton, who was slash-

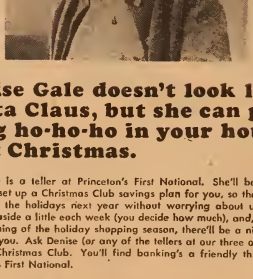
The friendly faces of Princeton's First National.



Denise Gale doesn't look like Santa Claus, but she can put a big ho-ho-ho in your house next Christmas.

Denise is a teller at Princeton's First National. She'll be very happy to set up a Christmas Club savings plan for you, so that you can enjoy the holidays next year without worrying about unpaid bills. Set aside a little each week (you decide how much), and, come the beginning of the holiday shopping season, there'll be a nice fat check for you. Ask Denise (or any of the tellers at our three offices) about a Christmas Club. You'll find banking's a friendly thing at Princeton's First National.

News Of The THEATRES

THREE IN ONE

At McCarter, Two hits out of three tries isn't bad. That's the score for McCarter's company this time around, as the actors introduce three one-act plays into the fall repertory.

All three deal with communications to man from another world, but the link of similarity ends there. We have William Butler Yeat's "The Words Upon the Window Pane," a new play by Wolf Mankowitz called "It Should Happen to a Dog" and a traditional medieval play, "The Second Shepherds' Pageant."

Play No. One. The spirit of Jonathan Swift permeates "The Words Upon the Window Pane" with such power that as the play ends, focusing sharply on the big old chair with its scarlet shawl, the stinging prickles on the back of your neck will prove to you that Dean Swift is there—THERE, invisable upon the stage.

Yeat's play is about a seance with a powerful medium named Mrs. Henderson. A pipe-smoking doctor brings a skeptical Cambridge scholar to the seance and through him tells you all you need to know — you remember when they used to write plays like this.

But under Arthur Lithgow's direction, "Words" has the tension and power to absorb and move more than you guessed at the beginning, even if your knowledge of Jonathan Swift never went beyond a child's version of "Gulliver's Travels."

Mary Doyle, in the part of Mrs. Henderson, gives a virtuoso display of acting which will remain in your memory for a long time. A striking woman, with facial bones too large for the small amount of skin stretched over them, Miss Doyle makes an impact before she even speaks. And then the spirit world takes over.

It is one thing to act the kind of part that is almost a monologue — George Hearn in "Enrico IV" comes to mind — but it's quite a another to play three different parts within the monologue (a child, a young woman and an old man) and not sound like little Willie doing an elocution recital.

All this, of course, and pantomime, too. Miss Doyle — one is tempted to call her "Mrs. Henderson" — is a dynamo of skill and power.

Will Hicks as the pipe-smoking doctor, and David Byrd as the righteous protestant minister from Belfast, are notably skillful.

Play No. Two. Talk about voices from the other world! You should ask Jonah his troubles.

Jonah is a traveling salesman. Suspenders, buttons and pink plastic hair-rollers. Jonah is pestered by God. Day and night.

We see from letters on his sample case that his middle initial is B. So it's our old friend, "J.B." And you know how God pestered him!

To Mr. Mankowitz' Jonah, God appears in the form of an irritable chirping bird, haranguing Jonah to such an exasperating extent that Jonah finally says, "Lissen, God, stop messin' me about!"

God keeps prodding Jonah to go to Ninevah, point out to king and people their evil ways and inform them that the world will end in 40 days.

Jonah would rather go to Tarshish. He has friends, it's a nice sea voyage, there's a new little espresso bar. . . .

On the way to Tarshish—but you'll recall the storm at sea. If you were a sea-captain like George Hearn and a passenger named Jonah of all things, had his sacrifice to God rudely rejected (ever spit into the wind?) what would you do.

Right. And once tossed overboard, there is that funny-business with the whale. What a way for God to treat His prophet!

Arrived, finally, in Ninevah, Jonah delivers his message. (Such delivery, Western Union should sue.) The king has also heard that chirping, fuss-pot bird and feels called upon to rend his garments.

So the world is to end in 40 days. . . . On the 41st day, the king declares a national holiday.

So why has God gone to such trouble, put Jonah to such in convenience yet, then pulled the rug out from under him?

It should happen to a dog.

Gentle fun; nice lines; just long enough. Jake Dengel has resigned eyes over his program's beard (scraggly, but times have been hard). He is one of God's chosen comics. But Jake, Jake boy, practice more the Yiddish accent. Preklee!

Play No. Three. Working its way through the Living Library of the World's Great Plays for Undergraduates, McCarter has now done a medieval mystery play. This should mean we won't have to see another for four more undergraduate years. A cause for hosannahs.

The Second Shepherds' Pageant" suffers from its own length. It should have been but was not, cut. Out of scholarly devotion to every single word?

We'd like to make one point clear. Advance notices may lead people to think that this is a simple re-telling of the Christmas story in the naive manner of humble peasant folk.

It isn't at all. It's the story of three half-frozen shepherds on an English moor, a yeoman who has a taste for stolen lamb-chops, and the yeoman's drunken slattern of a wife.

Ten minutes before the end, the most resplendent of angels (Linette Martin's costume is a miracle of gold and light) announces the Birth. The shepherds travel to the manger and in a charming scene, present their gifts—a singing bird, a ball the Child can play with and the stolen lamb. What goes before is the kind of heavy-footed comedy that was the ancestor of Shakespeare.

Bryan Hull's direction does all it can, although we would have constrasted more sharply the purity of Mary with the drunkenness of Gill, and the actors speak the rhymed couplets with enough skill to make you forget how wooden the lines really are.

Ronald Steelman, K. Lype O'Dell and Phillip Piro are vocationally suited to their roles as shepherds. Susan Babel is the best drunk we have seen on the McCarter stage since—but we'd prefer not to name names.

A rare evening in the theatre, obviously. Scholars will enjoy the chance to see a production of one of the Wakefield mysteries. Lay members of the audience will find the other two plays more rewarding.

— Katharine Bretnall

PLAYHOUSE, PRINCE, LINCOLN

Cool Hand Luke (now playing) cast Paul Newman as that traditional object of sorrow and compassion in American folksong and lore, the chain-gang prisoner. It is a starkly powerful parable, a simple tale with truths to tell. The plot centers on Luke a convict on a southern chain gang who has been sentenced to two years for destroying parking meters while drunk. A defiant non-conformist, he wins the admiration of other prisoners when he stands up to a brutal beating administered by another convict, played by George Kennedy.

He wins further acclaim through his expert poker playing and clinches his standing among his fellows by effecting two escapes from the jail. Brought back the second time, him image suffers when he cracks under savage punishment. His third escape is forever.

Newman is ideally cast as the anti-hero, endowing the character of Luke with a sense of dignity and humanity that makes him an intriguing though mystifying figure. Fine performances are turned in by Jo Van Fleet, cast as Luke's invalid mother; George Kennedy as the fearfully strong but simple-minded prisoner, and Strother Martin as the warden.

GARDEN

Accident (now playing) is a study in character relationship, and points are made in extremely subtle ways.

The plot can be summed briefly: two middle-aged professors at Oxford become involved in the lives of two students — a young Englishman and an Austrian girl. All three men are attracted to the girl; one has an affair with her which she breaks off when she becomes engaged to the student. Then the young man is killed in an automobile accident.

SHOP IN FLEMINGTON

At "Turntable Junction." Straight up Route 31 from Princeton, about a half-hour-plus in driving time, is the little shopping center in Flemington, called "Turntable Junction."

Compact and tidy, each store only a turn of the foot from the other, Turntable Junction straddles the tracks of the Jersey Central railroad. The buildings have been skillfully designed or remodeled to take you back a century or more. Brick walks under shellstering arcades . . . unexpected little courtyards that give a pleasant view of boxwood and ivy from a mullioned shop-window . . . the warmth of old shingles . . . the clear sharpness of yellow clapboards . . .

Inside the shops, you'll find an occasional old walk-in fireplace with blackened cranes; nicely reproduced old beams; brick floors sometimes laid in a curious diapered pattern and an overall faithfulness to the charm of another era.

The stores are diversified. Furniture, to buttons. Original contemporary watercolors to fragile Victorian besom-pins. Prices are reasonable, and the Junction has been designed with the moderate spender in mind.

Holiday Express. We'll start where you will, perhaps, at this season of the year, because "Holiday Express" is a gift shop awash with Christmas.

You'll enter under garlands of artificial ivy — the kind you'll buy for your own mantel or window decoration. Then, there are Della Robbia wreaths, and wreaths of well-made artificial Christmas greens — the Norfolk pine is especially realistic.

Our favorite in the shop is the music box shaped like a gleaming red Christmas bell. (A silver one just like it, plays a wedding anniversary tune). Other music boxes are shaped like gold spheres or churches, and of course there are traditional ones with dirndl girls and shepherd figures in the German fashion.

German creche figurines, with sweetly realistic faces and garments, have been fired for a satin-finish glaze quite different from the usual high gloss, or the bisque finish.

On the jewelry counter are Christmas earrings for pierced or solid ears, and the gayest bracelet, all golden bells. Hanging in each pane of the window is a single stained glass Christmas figure—Santa, a deer, an elf — each one hand-made by a Trenton craftsman. Even on a grey day, they catch the sun.

Christmas paper plates and cups? Or china with Christmas decorations? Or Rudolph himself, his head a cup to fill with hot chocolate on Christmas eve?

Calico Junction. Girls and women will spend Christmas allowances in this dress and accessory shop. We'd like to spend ours on an Avanti leather coat or jacket. Either one would go nicely with a pair of slacks from the wheel of corduroys, wools and stretches.

A dress could be a little striped wool nothing, or the silvery lame sheath we saw for holiday party-going. Sizes begin at five, and go on to the larger straight sizes.

Frilly for the holidays — a white perma-press shirt quite drowned in lace ruffles, comes with wide-eyed little round collar, or a devil-may-care standup collar. Another holiday shirt might be the Tiffany-patterned crinkle crepe.

Leather handbags, small as a chipmunk's feedbag or larger than the wearer, would be fun to find under the tree. Lots of earrings here, too, dangling all the way to you: shoulder.

The Gentry. In this masculine shop with its dark paneling, we found most appropriately, a walking stick. Bucks County to be sure, but what's geography?

MacGregor sends a blanket plaid outer coat warmly treated inside with sheared "lamb." Another MacG. is wide-wale corduroy with a smoother or lon pile lining.

"Turntable Junction"

The little shopplog center in Flemington called "Turntable Junction" is built around the old turntable where the Jersey Central Railroad once turned its steam engines around on the Jersey City-Fleming-ton run.

The turntable itself has been bricked over and serves as a summer dining terrace. Right now, you'll see it as a disc of solid brickwork between the main cluster of shops and the railroad tracks.

The depot of the Black River and Western Railroad is nearby. This is the line that sends its antique steam trains to Lambertville and back.

Enter Turntable Junction from Princeton by turning left on Church Street and parking in the area outside The Flower Crib.

On the country table of sweaters, our favorite is the heavy burnished copper wool, knit in thick ribs with nice stitching to form the yoke and the warm throat. Next to it is a finely knit hunter green with turtleneck, perhaps for a warmer winter day.

Tweed jackets are rough-country in texture, and of course there are slacks to harmonize. The Gentry has travel-slippers and pewter mugs and tie tacks (one is a half lemon-slice!) and tie bars. Roester is the tie manufacturer, and

THE MAN CALLED FLINTSTONE: a comedy film starring the TV cartoon characters, Wilma, little Pebble and Fred Flintstone, will be shown at 1 p.m. matinee this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Princeton Playhouse.

Like the Nicholas Mosley novel on which it is based, the Harold Pinter script uses a stream-of-consciousness technique. What is happening underneath the surface is more important than the external action.

An apparently inconsequential act by one of the principals turns out later to have considerable significance. Tension explodes suddenly and without warning. Characters hide their true feeling and then, provoked, express them openly. How they proceed, the difficulties and emotions they must overcome, the involvement and bits of suspense, the down-to-earth language and scenes all make for intriguing drama for adult viewers.

Fine characterizations are turned in by Dirk Bogarde and Stanley Baker as the professors; Michael York and Jacqueline Sassard as the student and the girl he lives. The film was shot in subdued color in keeping with the under-stated tone of this remarkably interesting picture.

TALK ABOUT "SRO"!

"Nutcracker" Holds Record. Since the first performance of "The Nutcracker" in Princeton in 1964, there has never been an unsold seat in McCarter for the Christmas fantasy.

This year it will be given three times: on Friday, December 15 at 8:30; Saturday, December 16 at 2:30p.m.and Sunday, December 17 at 3 p.m.

The production of Tschaikowsky's Christmas present will again be sponsored by the Princeton Ballet Society and McCarter. Dancers of the Princeton Regional Ballet will be joined by guest soloists in choreography by Audree Estey and Lila Brunner. Stephen Hendrickson has designed the scenery.

Tickets for all three performances are now on sale at the McCarter box-office.

TICKETS AVAILABLE . . .

For Several McCarter Shows. A Thanksgiving weekend may be celebrated at McCarter by taking the children to see "Beauty and the Beast" this Friday at 3:30 or Saturday at 11 a.m. and 2:30.

"VICHY" AT INTIME

Miller Play In Rehearsal. "Incident at Vichy," Arthur Miller's play about Nazi-occupied France, will be presented by the young actors of the University's Theatre Intime as their final fall production.

Premiere will be next Wednesday, November 29, with performances through that weekend on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and again the following weekend on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, December 7, 8 and 9, all at 8:30 p.m.

The Lincoln Center repertory company gave the first performances of Miller's play in 1964, to mixed notices.

"We've removed several of the Lincoln Center 'improvements' and re-instated Miller in the play," says Peter Platten, director of Intime's production.

For next season, Intime's members have scheduled Moliere's "The Misanthrope," Harold Pinter's "The Dumbwaiter," the musical "Once Upon a A Mattress," Murray Shisgal's "Luv" and a student-written musical, "Miracle."

SHAW, AT RIDER

"Major Barbara." Rider College Theatre '59 will present Bernard Shaw's "Major Barbara" as its second production of the season, opening next Wednesday, November 29, and continuing through Sunday, December 3 at 8 p.m.

Got an Old Corset?

That tight-fitting undergarment women used to wear around the turn of the century, known as a corset, is needed by Rider College Theatre '39 for its production of George Bernard Shaw's "Major Barbara" November 29 through December 3.

Director John Hruby is hoping to outfit four female members of his cast with a corset. Anyone able to dig one up is asked to notify the Fine Arts Department at Rider.

It's New To Us

there are bows to tie yourself and standard fore-in-hands.

The Boutique. One of Turntable's smallest shops is this button-sized boutique. Collect buttons? The shop has three boxes full — two for 25c buttons, the other for $1 buttons — and you can sit there all morning and paw through the buttons looking for just the right one.

The lady who owns the shop makes pins out of the bigger old buttons, and the day we were there she was wearing a handsome one with a profile of the Goddess of Law.

Boutique also has a lot of estate jewelry, and much of it is exquisitely ornate in the Victorian mode. One garnet pin, for example, is simply encrusted with the stones. A set, with secretive opals, has been beautifully mounted in filigree gold.

We liked the curious little card case with a brilliant enamel painting on its silver cover. Collectors of Napoleon may like the little snuff-box someone carved out of dark horn in the shape of his tricorn.

Heritage House. Here is one of Turntable's bigger shops, full of sunshine and shining reproductions of silver, and big corner cupboards of china and huge tables full of Christmas cards, from which you'd better chose yours right now.

Heritage has an interesting thing: a line of paint called "Turnco" that comes in those soft old Colonial colors. You buy it by pint or quart to paint fence, barn or house, and there's a bayberry green, and the barn red that's really a soft old wine — well, you know.

This shop will also make for you a wrought-iron sign with name and address to put outside your house. Lots of samples to choose from.

In one corner cupboard, we found reproductions of ironstone from the Henry Ford museum, and in a wall cupboard, the lovely blue of Williamsburg Delft. Stern and sturdy ladderback chairs, unoiled and honestly countrified, are available at Heritage in several styles — to sit on while you eat from your Williamsburg Delft.

A candle tree offers its crop for holiday tables and sconces. A group of 12 of the slimmest tapers ever, fit into a holder so low it will be completely concealed by your arrangement of greens.

Liberty Tree. Here's a shop with a giant fireplace. Around it are the Liberty Tree furniture reproductions from Pennsylvania, most of them done in heavy pine, darkly stained to a walnut glow.

Upholstered rockers and couches carry out the Colonial motif. One wall is devoted to clocks, including a blue Delft one, and a quiet chimer.

The Watercolorist. A surprise in Junction's world of Colonial style, this shop carries original and reproduction water-colors, most of them by artists who live in the central and northern parts of New Jersey.

Here, for $2, you may buy an amusing Princeton gargoyle. Here, for about $3-$4, you may buy watercolors of campus scenes from about 40 American colleges. Here you may commission a watercolor of your own favorite house or scene.

Many of the originals are beach scenes; in fact, some of the best ones are spare evocations of sand and tide. There are also a great many woodlands, some with lovely white birches in the dapple of sun and shade. Abstracts are on display, too, a particular reminder of the spontaneity of watercolor as a medium.

Prices at The Watercolorist are quite moderate — $40 for a framed beach for example. Other watercolors, by bigger "names," are more, of course.

Wooderhead Depot. Toys of Germany, England, Italy — this is a big toy store, with big brand names like Steiff for endearing stuffed animals (some of them HUGE), and Corgi for the tiniest of cars and Alexander for the most exquisite of dolls and Parker for the most devilish of games.

British lead soldiers are available in almost every battle in history. We, of course, like the "Fall of American Independence." And for free-loading stock-owners, the shop

Fair Compensation Urged.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Having been elected to the office of borough tax collector on the campaign promise to reduce the perquisites of office to the level prevailing in Princeton Township, Mrs. Christine St. John is now in the position to activate her program.

It is doubtful that the Borough Council could pass an ordinance reducing the compensation of the office of tax collector from $2,400 per annum to $300 per annum during the tenure of the incumbent, Mrs. Marie B. Coan, or the tenure of the Tax Collector-elect, but it probably could provide for a $300 annual salary for the next successor to that office.

In the interim, if Mrs. St. John objects strenuously to the $2,400 stipend now payable, she can remit $2,100 to the Borough Treasurer and retain only the $300 the office presumably should pay.

If the Borough of Princeton wishes to follow the Princeton Township practice in the payment of its tax collector, it might be well to adopt Township practice in the payment of honoraria to members of its governing body. In the Borough, the mayor receives an annual stipend of $500, and the six Councilmen serve without pay. In Princeton Township, the mayor receives annual compensation of $3,000 and the other four committeemen each receive $1,000.

This $1,000 honorarium from the Township might be considered as roughly equal to the property taxes on the homes the committeemen own, and hence a recompense for extraordinary civic duty. Or, it might be considered as a lump sum payment in lieu of all the little expenditures, time and sacrifices that a committeeman makes to carry on Township business, that could be vouchered for, as necessary expenses. It also means that a Township resident in modest financial circumstances can afford to run for office, knowing that if elected his financial sacrifice will be somewhat abated.

In light of today's price level and Federal individual income tax rates, it would not be amiss for the Borough of Princeton to pay its mayor $3,00 per annum and its councilmen $1,000 per annum. In an era when top full-time municipal officials in places like Princeton Borough and Princeton Township get salaries approaching $15,000 per year, the suggested honoraria are not out of line.

HENRY J. FRANK
136 Valley Road

Editor's Note: TOWN TOPICS has long been on record as believing that the mayor and council of Princeton Borough should receive annual salaries much as those suggested by Mr. Frank. Borough taxpayers are coasting on the willingness to serve of their volunteer public officials.

NOTICE

TOWN TOPICS will make every effort, based on space limitations, to publish up to 500 words of any letter on a subject directly affecting the Princeton area. Because of the volume of news which must be covered at the community level, letters on topics of a national or international nature cannot be considered.

Letters to Mailbox should be typewritten if possible, double-spaced, and must be signed for publication. Those received later than Monday afternoon may be held for use the following week.

As the car headed up again toward Nassau, the first car in line waiting for the light to turn green was that of Ptl. Cox of the Township Police, also on his way home. Behind Cox were the three men, with Gallant and Patterson in the rear.

Car Speeds Away. At this moment, Ptl. Alston ran up to Cox's car and the trio's car slowed to a point where Sgt. Gallant thought it was going to stop. But then as Ptl. Alston signalled with upraised hand for the car to stop, it pulled around Cox's car and turned left on Nassau and took off at high speed. Gallant and Pat-

Brasted, still in serious condition at St. Francis Hospital, was unable, however, to state positively that the three, who were later brought before his bed, were the ones who had attacked him. Loot from that robbery totalled $1,323.

Lt. Maguire Reconstructs. As reconstructed by Lt. Maguire, the first to spot the three men in Princeton was Township Ptl. Howard Sweeney, who on his way home after completing his 4-to-midnight shift. As he was driving on Witherspoon Street, Ptl. Sweeney spotted a safe in the rear of an apparently stalled car. "The trunk was wide open, and Sweeney definitely knew it was a safe," said Maguire. "He even saw the dial on it." Ptl. Sweeney then noticed three Negro men trying to get the car started. The time was a few minutes after midnight.

Ptl. Sweeney headed up Nassau Street, looking for a Borough policeman. He spotted Ptl. David Alston on foot patrol, walking toward Witherspoon and relayed his information.

Meanwhile, at the same time, Sgt. Arthur Gallant and Ptl. Gerald Patterson noticed the stalled car from their patrol car. It appeared to them, Lt. Maguire continued, that it was just getting over motor trouble.

However, as it jerked forward a couple of times, the trunk lid partially opened and the two officers saw what looked like a TV set. They followed the car as it turned right on Nassau and circled the block, going through stop signs at Hulfish Street and again at Witherspoon.

between gave chase with Cox following behind to give assistance.

Soon the speed reached 85. At the Kingston Bridge, with its dangerously sharp approaches, the fleeing car sideswiped the north wall of the bridge. Again it slowed almost as if to stop.

Instead, it picked up speed again and stayed in the wrong lane where Lt. Maguire reported "it passed every thing in sight." The cars sped through South Brunswick before radio messages that had been sent out ahead could be acted on.

The chase continued through the main street of New Brunswick. Then passing over the bridge crossing the Raritan River, the cars were lined up behind one another for the first time. With the arch of the bridge's roadway serving as a backstop, Sgt. Gallant fired three shots. One bullet pierced the safe. Another must have struck the rear tire because it developed a flat.

After passing three of four red lights in Highland Park, the Borough patrol car, Pfc. Cox's car, three patrol cars from Highland Park and one from New Brunswick converged on the suspect car on Route 27 where it joins Route 1.

Entry was made in the King's Court through a 15-inch window of the rear patio, Lt. Maguire said. The trio is believed to have carried the safe through the kitchen door to their car parked out front on Witherspoon Street.

CAR WASH?

Approval but Conditions. William Bucci won approval from the Township Zoning Board Thursday night to build a car-wash on Route 206, but because it doesn't want to have to provide as many parking spaces as an "office" when it builds an addition to its building.

The board also told Princeton House Co. that it could there are many conditions ahead before the first car goes through the line.

The chief problem is hooked into the sewer situation in the part of the Township. Montgomery Township is talking about a sewage plant just over the border, but it is a long way from actuality and the Zoning Board in Princeton doesn't like the idea of a car-wash tieing in to small-package treatment units.

Mr. Bucci's car-wash site is on the right side of Route 206 as the highway leads out of Princeton. On one side, separated by a vacant lot, is Nini Plymouth and on the other, also separated by a vacant lot, is Boice Lumber Company's warehouse. Exit and entrance would be on Route 206.

Conditions of approval, such as employee parking, landscape screening, hours of operation and so on, are expected to be detailed by December 1.

At Thursday night's meeting, the Bucci application was opposed by Garrett Heher, attorney for Frederick P. Lawrence, who has been given Superior Court approval to build his own car-wash on the opposite side of town on Lower Alexander Street.

Mr. Bucci wanted to build on Lower Alexander too, but the court ruled for Mr. Lawrence after the Zoning Board approved both applications and the two owners asked the court "which?".

Mr. Heher said on Thursday that a car-wash on Route 206 would be a traffic hazard.

In other action on Thursday, the board decided that Gallup and Robinson, at least to members of the Zoning Board, is not a "research facility." Gulpar, Inc., which leases the North Harrison "G. & R." building to Gallup and Robinson, wanted a "research" declaration from the board be-has a whole neat case full of one-inch livestock for proprietors of doll houses, doll farm houses and the like.

Another whole case holds music boxes, mostly from Germany. A lot of them have simple, apparently untreated wooded figures that look just as though they were fresh from the carver's hands.

Kitchen Kottage. A clam opener and an oyster opener. Two different tools, two different examples of the abundance of kitchen tool-ware in this crowded little shop.

Wooden bowls for salads, salad servers shaped and colored like stalks of celery, billows of linen towels to use for drying the salad greens . . . a brown pottery bowl to hold onion dip! We even found an egg here. It holds egg shampoo.

Mother Hubbards' Cupboard. This is right next door to Kitchen Kottage, so you can hold your newly-purchased enamel cook pot in one hand, while you rush next door for a can of artichoke hearts.

We brought home a half-pound carton of brandy blue-cheese and ate it all. With crackers.

There is smoky beef bacon from Jugtown Mountain near Flemington and in fact, the whole Jugtown line, starting with a giant ham. You can buy a real Smithfield ham in this shop, by the way. Not cheap, but think of the flavor!

Mason jars hold Dutch relish, corn relish, beet horseradish relish. Little jars hold home-made preserves from Cee-Cee, whoever she may be. From the Pennsylvania Dutch come prune butter, apple butter and canned potato salad.

In this shop you can also buy fillets of eel. Smoked.

Candy Caboose. Across the Junction is the Candy Caboose, specializing now in Christmas hard-candies, but specializing always in that wonderful inch-thick fudge. It has black walnuts, or plain old big walnut chunks, or no nuts. Some is light, some is dark. There is white fudge, too, and penuche.

Chocolates by the bulk are cremes, nougats, dark bark filled with nuts for munching after school.

Candy Caboose also has a large and varied selection of dietetic candies, including peppermint sticks and hard candies as well as chocolates of different kinds.

The Flower Crib. Toward the south end of the Junction, i. the Flower Crib — a charming nursery built from a really truly old corn crib. The Flower Crib specializes in unusual house plants — not so unusual you can't grow them yourself, but different from the ones all your friends have.

Books on house-plant health and welfare and a lot of expert advice from the Flower Crib owner will help you along. Can you think of a better present for a greenthumb friend?

Bake Shop. All by itself in the tiniest white building you ever saw, this Bake Shop invites you to buy home-made round-loaf bread, pecan or frosted coffee cakes, apple turnovers, Linzer cookies, sugar cookies, brownies, macaroon bars.

Spread Eagle Tea Room. After a morning's tour of Turntable Junction, you can stop for lunch in the Spread Eagle Tea Room, and eat at a little table whose base once supported an old treadle sewing machine.

The shop is another with a wide, Colonial fireplace and a lot of cozy charm. It's fun to sit at a window table and watch the shoppers stroll by on the brick walks.

The menu includes sandwiches and soups and desserts. The Spread Eagle does not serve liquor, but it is well-equipped so give you the reviving snack you need after the labor of carrying all those packages.

Take fashion in hand . . . .
then let it go to your head!

PART OF ROSSMOOR SOLD

Newark Firm Buys Land. Engelhard-Hanovia, Inc., a Newark investment firm, has purchased a 827-acre tract of land that was once slated for development as part of Rossmoor, the 2,600 acre adult community.

Located on Forsgate drive, between Route 130 in South Brunswick Township and the New Jersey Turnpike Interchange 8A, the property includes a portion of Forsgate Industrial Park. It does not include any park of Rossmoor which is already developed.

A spokesman for Engelhard-Hanovia said the majority of the land is undeveloped, but several industrial firms lease portions of it. He said there were no immediate plans for use of the land.

MAN IS ARRESTED

For Restaurant Disturbance. Earl Woods, 118 Witherspoon Street, was arrested by Borough Pfc. John J. Bellow at 7:30 Saturday night, after he had allegedly created a disturbance while loitering in Pietrinferno's Restaurant, 84 Nassau Street.

He was released five hours later on $25 bail. He will appear later this month before Magistrate Theodore T. Tams Jr.

CAR RAMS POLE

Youth Is Hospitalized. A Princeton Township youth was hospitalized early Monday morning after his car rammed into a telephone pole on Cherry Valley Road, a half mile east of the Great Road.

Alan S. Mazur, 20, Cherry Hill Road, was admitted to Princeton Hospital's intensive care unit following treatment for severe lacerations of the head and face and a fractured left arm. His condition was listed as good. He and another brother and their father operate Mazur's Shell Service Station and tire center in Pennington.

The accident occurred at 6:45 in the morning. Township police said that the impact had battered and knocked down a telephone pole, disrupting service temporarily in the surrounding area, Bell Telephone and Public Service officials were notified to repair the downed wires.

After striking the pole, Mr. Mazur's car hit a private water pumping station on the property of James Benedict, police said, completely demolishing the pump. Sgt. Anthony Nini investigated. He described the victim's car as a total loss.

The mishap is still under investigation.

GETS 5 DAYS IN JAIL

For Three Traffic Violations. Gibson E. DeLancey, 25, 68 Pine Street was sentenced to five days in jail by Township Magistrate Glen B. Miller Jr. last week in lieu of fines for three traffic violations. DeLancey pleaded guilty.

He was charged with driving a fictitious inspection sticker, fictitious license plates and being an unlicensed driver. He had already spent the five days in jail where he was placed, pending completion of criminal charges against him.

This is the "something good" you've been looking for.

And now AM radio can be beautiful too. The Model Twenty-Four also available with new high quality AM.

When you go shopping for "something really good" in stereo equipment, you usually have to pay more than you expected, or settle for something less than you expected.

Now, KLH Model Twenty-Four changes that situation—radically.

The Model Twenty-Four is a complete stereo music system. Its performance and sound quality are close—very close—to that of the best equipment that KLH, or anyone else, makes. But it costs only a fraction of what it sounds like. And it fits gracefully into any living room.

There's nothing missing from the Model Twenty-Four. It has a sensitive, drift-free FM stereo tuner, a custom-made Garrard record changer with Pickering cartridge and diamond stylus, plus jacks for external equipment and for making tape recordings. The solid-state circuitry is powerful enough for any living room, and the unobtrusive speaker cabinets contain a pair of full-range, two-speaker systems.

The modest size and price of the Twenty-Four are the results of advanced engineering instead of corner-cutting. Everything from its components to its oiled-walnut cabinetry is designed to provide a genuine surprise rather than that "nice for the money" feeling.

Come see and hear how little it can cost for something really good.

WE DO!

SOME PEOPLE don't want to believe that a few drinks can seriously harm their ability to drive a car.

One person may SHOW fewer signs of the effect of social drinking than the other, because of body weight, fatigue, emotional condition or a number of other reasons. But the effect is there. He is not sober.

It is true the social drinker can start the car, put it in motion and steer it. The important point is that he doesn't have the judgment and the reflexes to do these things safely. This is true even after a few drinks.

Alcohol is carried by the blood stream to all parts of the body that contain water, including the brain. In the brain, alcohol first depresses the area of higher functions, which includes judgment, social restraint, etc.

Next, it attacks the simple motor functions, reaction time and vision. Then, balance, coordination and sensory are impaired.

Several factors affect the absorption of alcohol into the blood stream: amount of food in the stomach, type of food, type of drink, body weight, drinking habits. None will keep the alcohol from reaching the brain — although they may slow down or speed up absorption time. It takes about one hour to eliminate the effect of each bottle of beer or each ounce of whiskey.

A good driver is able to judge speeds and distances, follow traffic patterns, make adjustments as traffic flow changes and quickly react to hazards and emergencies. After taking a few drinks, a good driver is no longer able to do these things well. He becomes a bad driver, a hazard to himself and to others on the road.

Because They Save Lives.

LITTLE BLUNDERS . . .

- Forget the rear-view mirror. What do you care where you've been?
- Pass as many cars as you can in one shot. Keep score!
- Never let anyone pass you. Why let people think you're chicken?
- When an on-coming car doesn't dim his brights, blind him with yours. An eye for an eye.
- If you want to average 50, sometimes you have to hit 80, right?
- Be polite. Look at the person you're talking to while you're driving.
- If your tail pipe is dragging on the road, don't worry about the sparks.
- Ignore the shimmy you get at 53 mph. Go a little faster and it'll go away.
- Never give up your right of way. What's yours is yours, and that's that.
- Don't waste time having your brakes adjusted. Push harder on the pedal.
- "Sit a little closer, baby."

HUNTING SEASON

Before you pull the trigger . . . look again. Each fall several hundred hunters return home via hearse. Thousands of hunters and strolling nature lovers return with a load of bird shot or a rifle bullet to be dug out. Even the small bore rifle has considerable range. Look again.

Unload your gun, it takes just a second, before you cross over or through a fence. A loaded gun might fall and discharge. Ricochetting bullets can carry long distance with killing power. Unload first — reload after crossing.

Always carry a gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle even if you stumble. Keep the safety catch on until ready to shoot. Keep the barrel clean, a barrel clogged with mud or snow may burst.

Somewhere beyond that "No Gunning" sign at the edge of the woods may be a man who does his hunting with a camera, a birdwatcher, a naturalist, or a couple of exploring kids . . . people who trust hunters to observe "No Gunning." Do yourself a favor and stay away. That 'game' you shoot may be something else.

GUN ADVICE

More persons are accidentally shot at home (52%) than while hunting.

Never keep a loaded gun in the house. Keep guns hidden (locked up, if possible) from children.

Store guns and ammunition in separate places so that if a child finds one, he cannot find the other.

Treat a gun as though it's loaded every time you clean or handle it. Keep others out of the room while you clean firearms.

Know a Soldier in Vietnam?

In its next issue, TOWN TOPICS will carry a list of men and women from the Princeton area who will be spending Christmas in Vietnam. As in the past, readers will be invited to send Christmas greetings.

Those wishing to add names to the list should send them, with the complete address, to TOWN TOPICS, P.O. Box 664, by Saturday.

Cranbury, paid $15 for careless driving. Carol Steinberg, 34, 73 College Road West, and Alicia L. Nash, 34, 364 Franklin Avenue, paid $15 and $12 respectively for stop-sign infractions.

MANAGER CUT IN FACE

With Liquor Glass. An altercation between Jerry Ross, manager of the King's Court Restaurant, and three women patrons on Saturday afternoon ended with Mr. Ross being treated at Princeton Hospital.

Thirteen stitches were needed to close a deep laceration in Mr. Ross' left cheek which he received when one of the women allegedly pushed her cocktail glass into his face.

According to the police, the trouble started at 2:30 when Mr. Ross informed the women they would have to leave. An argument followed. One of the women then allegedly emptied the contents of her glass in Mr. Ross' face, police said.

Police made no charges. They added that the women had obviously been drinking.

MODEL TRAINS COMING

To Rocky Hill. The Pacific Southern Railway Company of Rocky Hill will once again hold a Model Railroad Exhibition. The event on Washington Street in Rocky Hill will take place Saturday, December 9, between 11 and 5, and Sunday, December 10, between 1 and 5.

Tickets—selling at $1 for adults and 50 cents for children—are available at: Trenton Hobby Center, 237 East State Street, Trenton; Marsh and Co. Pharmacists, 30 Nassau Street; Nassau Hobby Center, 142 Nassau Street; The Model Railroad Shop, Vale Avenue, Dunnellen; Aunt Abigail's, Flemington; and Trackside Specialties, 12 Barker Road, Somerset.

Rocky Hill residents can pick up tickets at Edna's, Washington Street; Buxton's, Route 206; and the Rocky Hill Fire Company and Rescue Squad. Proceeds from the display of model railroad equipment will go to the Rocky Hill Fire Company and the Rocky Hill Emergency and Rescue Squad.

TWO ARE HALTED

Under Point System. Two Princeton area drivers have had their licenses suspended by the Division of Motor Vehicles for exceeding the point limit.

Phyllis V. Binaco, 22, 22 Harris Road, lost her license for three months; Jeffrey B. Lowe, 21, 17 Crescent Avenue, Rocky Hill lost his for one month.

STAMP REPEATED

For 1967 Holiday Season. The Princeton Post Office is bracing itself for the Christmas season and the deluge of mail that accompanies the December holiday. Christmas stamps featuring an 15th century Flemish painting, "Madonna and Child with Angels," by Hans Memling, are already on sale.

The stamp is merely a larger version of last year's well-received special Christmas stamp according to Postmaster John L. Dilworth. Selling at five cents, the stamp provides standard first class handling for envelopes on which it is used.

The postmaster urges all area residents to start their Christmas shopping and mailing as early as possible. Postal patrons are also requested to use ZIP code in all addresses —including the return address —to make handling easier for post office employees.

Question Of The Week

Question: This is a time for giving thanks. What do you have to be thankful for this Thanksgiving?

Where asked: Palmer Square.

Mrs. Leona Tramel, 194 John Street, beautician: I'm thankful that my little brother is still alive over in Vietnam. He's been over there almost a year, and he'll be coming back home in March.

Walter Chow, Gauss Hall, University Junior: The fact that I'm alive. There's nothing more beautiful than being alive and enjoying it.

Mrs. Hugh Lambert, 8 Shagback Lane, Hightstown, housewife: Well, to be living in a bountiful society. To be living in a country like this that has practically everything when a lot of countries have almost nothing.

William Mozzey, Stony Brook, N.Y., civil engineer for C.C. Estates, Princeton: I just changed jobs recently and I have a very nice position — and my family is all well.

Mrs. John H. Roe, 961 Mercer Road, housewife: Goodness, the first thing to be thankful for is that we live in this great, great wonderful country, where God has been put at the basis of government, really, and where everyone is equal and has the ability to work out their own salvation. This means everyone's got to work but at least we have the freedom to work out our own futures. I think we all should be so grateful to be living in this country where we have the ability and the intelligence and the freedom to move forward together.

Alice Sager, 100 Stockton Street, seminary student: A wonderful family and a free country.

Mrs. Minnie Livermore, Trenton, part-time cook for Princeton family: I have so much to be thankful for. I guess the main thing is I have my health and strength and having my five children all well and healthy. That's quite a lot isn't it?

Harold Jarrow, Morrisville, Pa., employee at Langreck's: Being alive and being healthy — I think that is pretty darn good. . and the fact that neither one of my sons is in Vietnam, despite one being in the service and the other in the reserves.

Stephen F. Josick, 82 Stonacher Drive, Lawrence Township, stock broker, Clark, Dodge: I'm thankful to be living in a country as free as the United States.

Miss Beverly Critz, Princeton Junction, secretary: I'm just thankful to be alive — to be here! I just got a new car and I'm thankful I haven't wrecked it yet.

Mrs. Ann McChesney, 402-B Butler Avenue, graduate student, Rutgers, vocational teaching education: I think probably a happy home life, and living in a free country— and I suppose having enough food to eat, clothes to wear and being healthy. I imagine this is what most people would be thankful for if they had these things, especially when one remembers a good many around us who don't.

Robert Schwartz, Palmer Square, employee, Nassau Broadcasting Company: If I had to say what I was thankful for, I think I'd say I've got my health, a good job and I am happy to be where I am. Here we are fighting a war — and I'm not in favor of that. It's hard to say, really, except for the simple things.

Chuck Ashton, 160 Patton Avenue, PHS sophomore: I'm thankful that my grades were a little better than I thought they'd be— and that I'm not draft age!

Larry Wright, 218 Prospect Avenue, PHS sophomore: I'm thankful for the way my parents feed me. I really am. They feed me very well.

Mrs. William Conlson, 418 Butler Ave, employee, Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Office: Well, I have my health, and my husband and I just came back from a wonderful year abroad, and we have friends and family who love us, and they are all healthy.

FUND AIDED

By Community Group. The Princeton Chamber of Commerce and Princeton University's chapter of the National Student Association have given the Princeton Student-to-Student Scholarship Fund $120. The money will go to the support of a needy Princeton High School graduate, giving him the necessary funds—up to $500 per year—to attend a college he would otherwise be unable to attend.

The gift represents a surplus run up in the freshman discount booklet program, which is sponsored by the two donor organizations. The booklet program provides incoming University freshman with coupons for services and purchases at area businesses in order to acquaint the freshmen with Princeton retailers.

The scholarship fund is the recent creation of several University Students—acting on an idea of Paul Sittenfeld, junior class president. A 10-member committee supervises the development and the administration of the fund.

BATTLE IS BREWING

Over Lawrence School Plans. Faced with the prospect of double sessions in the elementary grades or renting additional classrooms space in churches or firehouses, few Lawrence Township residents appear to be arguing against building a $2.2 million intermediate school.

The agreement on the site, a 12-acre tract on Eggerts Crossing Road and Reeder Avenue, is far from unanimous, however, and a small but determined band of residents is working for the defeat of the public referendum on the school. The issue will come before the voters Tuesday, November 28.

Louis Bilancio, 90 Eggerts Crossing Road, chief spokesman of the Central Lawrence Civic Association, told the township's school board in a meeting Wednesday night that his group opposes the school principally because of its location.

According to Mr. Bilancio, the school would not only affect properties of the association's members, most of whom live in the immediate area, but also would bring in added traffic. School board members commented that any location would attract extra traffic, but that the Eggerts Crossing site is best suited to handle it.

The association also proposed several alternate sites for the school, including one on Denow Road and another on Route 206 south of Franklin Corner Road.

About 1,100 pupils in the fifth, sixth and seventh grades would be transferred to the new school, easing the crowded conditions at present Lawrence schools. "We hope that if the intermediate school is built by 1969 overcrowding in every school will be eliminated," said Dr. William F. O'Connor, superintendent of schools.

There are 38 classrooms planned for the new school, five specifically designed as science laboratories, plus a cafeteria-auditorium, student guidance center, art shop and home economics rooms. All basic classrooms would be near the library with each grade level classroom grouped together.

School officials are particularly pleased with the school's location because the recreational facilities at Eggerts Crossing Park adjacent to the school would be available to the children.

Recent school board tax figures indicate, that if the referendum passed the owner of a $20,000 home assessed at $20,000 would pay $6 more in taxes by 1970-71, $14 more fh 1971-72, and $16 the following year. However, school authorities point out that payments on the junior school will end in 1971-72, thereby reducing the tax increase.

The increased taxes may also be met to some degree by the rise in tax ratables if the move of the National Dairy Products Corporation into Lawrence is approved.

SURVEY TAKEN

Of Hopewell Residents. The Hopewell Valley Community Adult School is conducting a survey to determine the demand among Hopewell residents for special high school equivalency courses. Such courses would provide instruction and refresher training in subjects required for the High School Equivalency Exams.

These exams are held twice a year by the State Department of Education. Anyone interested in such a program should contact E. Norman Udy at the Adult School of

NEW MAP READIED

For Princeton Residents. The League of Women Voters has just published a new map of Princeton Borough and Township. The map shows election districts as well as all new and changed streets.

Assisting the League in publication of the street guide was the Open Space Commission of Princeton Township. The two organizations, in turn, relied heavily of the efforts of Borough and Township engineers.

The map includes an alphabetical street index and, on the reverse side, a brief history of Princeton. A profile of the two Princetons and the Regional School System is also provided—along with a panel of general voting information.

Mrs. Harold Cherniss, Mrs. George Derby, Mrs. Ludwig Rebenfeld and Mrs. Stanley Smoyer coordinated publication of the street guide. The map, the first to include an outline of the land acquired by the Open Space Commission under its Green Acres Program, sells for 75 cents in stationery stores.

BAZAAR FOR STUART

On December 2. Christmas decorations, liturgical art — and steaks will be offered for sale at the annual Christmas Bazaar of Stuart County Day School of the Sacred Heart, to be held Saturday, December 2 at the school from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

A "silent auction" will be held from 10 to 2, and the live auction at 2:15. Among the auction offerings are a 1859 Peugeot, a pair of camel saddles and a unicycle, in addition to more conservative items.

NEW MAP ON DISPLAY: Standing with a recently published map of Princeton Borough and Township are the women responsible for the map's creation: Mrs. Stanley Smoyer (left), vice-chairman of the Open Space Commission, and Mrs. Harold Cherniss, special projects chairman of the Princeton Area League of Women Voters. Being shown the map is Mrs. David Thomas, league president.

Angels, creche figures and other religious art objects in contemporary or traditional designs, will be available in a variety of materials ranging from wood to papier mache. Some madonnas and angels have been handmade.

Garden statuary will include a modern praying mantis, the traditional St. Francis bird bath and imported stone figures. Dried flower arrangements, Christmas balls in sequins and "jewels" will be offered for the season. Students at Stuart made the decorated Christmas balls.

The steaks are one-pound U.S.D.A. Choice bone-in sirloin strips, boxed. They are similar to those offered at last year's Bazaar.

Chairmen of this year's Christmas Bazaar are Mrs. Donald P. Donahue and Mrs. Richard C. Flournoy.

HISTORY UNFOLDS

As Remodeling Proceeds. As Nassau Hall bares its interior structure to the onslaught of extensive rennovations, light is being shed on pioneering construction techniques incorporated in the building over its 211-year history.

Since its construction in 1756, the historic structures has twice been gutted by fire with only the walls standing after the flames had subsided — once in 1802 and again in 1855. The architects called upon to redesign the building used several novel techniques — most notably the use of iron beams in 1855.

Nassau Hall's iron beams are among the first such structural elements in the United States — paving the way for their extensive use in steel-framed skyscrapers of the late 19th century. The iron beams, supporting the floors, were supposed to make the building more fire resistant to prevent a reoccurence of the 1802 and 1855 disasters. Philadelphia architects played a dominant part in the history of Nassau Hall. All three architects who had a hand in the evolving design of the building were from Philadelphia: John Notman, Robert Smith and Benjamin Latrobe.

Sections of the beams which had to be cut out to make way for a stairwell are being preserved by the University's Department of Planning, Plant and Properties. Aiding in preservation of the historic beams is Matthews Construction Company, the firm in charge of remodelling Nassau Hall's second and third floors.

MERCEDES-BENZ introduces

The Invisible Model Changeover

We've posted half of this year's Mercedes-Benz 250S next to half of next year's 250S. The Changeover is invisible.

The NEW '68 MERCEDES-BENZ Models Are Here—And The '67 Models Aren't Out Of Date. . . Because You Can Hardly Tell The Two Apart.

If you own a current or recent Mercedes-Benz, the invisible model changeover means you'll be spared watching your car drop several hundred dollars in value overnight. And you won't feel as if you're suddenly stuck with last year's fashion. CHANGE FOR MORE THAN CHANGE'S SAKE. Instead of lumping all its changes into one big artificial spree over fall, Mercedes-Benz simply adds them to the regular model run whenever the engineering staff declares them ready. The '68 Mercedes-Benz models differ from the '67's only in a handful of technical modifications made simply to meet the letter of Federal regulations that apply to all new domestic and foreign-built cars sold in the U S THAT'S ALL. No styling changes to make you think the cars are all-new.

GOING ABROAD

Orders for January production of all Mercedes-Benz now being accepted. Please place your orders early!

We will handle all details for you.

There are 13 Mercedes-Benz models, ranging from $25,582 to $4,179 and from limousines to sports to economy cars. Visit Autobahn Motors soon for a test drive of the world's finest motor car . . . and a firsthand look at the invisible model changeover. BUSINESS In Princeton

CRAMPED FOR SPACE? Maybe A Partnership. . . . The $250,000 Professional Building on Route 206 near Cherry Hill Road is a multi-partner answer to Princeton's ever-current shortage of office space.

The partner tenants had found the problem so acute that many moved in before the doorknobs were installed in October.

"We've moved five times in six years," architect Philip S. Collins states. "The basic philosophy here is never to have to move again."

Three other partners, all pediatricians, settled in during August. Drs. Benjamin D. Silverman, Robert H. Bierman and M. David Akiik abandoned a crowded suite in the Princeton Hospital medical building for a half floor in the new building. They gained space for more examining rooms, waiting areas that separate sick and well children, laboratory space and a room for electrocardiograms and minor surgery.

The partnership also includes architects Harrison J. Uhl and Kurt M. Anderson, and engineer Richard W. Hoisington, all members of the firm Collins, Uhl and Hoisington; two orthopedic surgeons, Arthur E. Mittnacht and Paul E. Van Horn, and attorney Charles L. Jaffin. All but Mr. Jaffin are occupants.

Four Years of Planning. Plans for the building began more than four years ago on one of our wild days, when we had children and moth-ers judging out the door-way." Dr. Silverman recalls. One of the mothers was Mrs. Hoisington who remarked that her husband's firm was equally hard-pressed for space. This led to a meeting of minds on a shared problem and a widening circle of partners. The building, containing 8 to 10 suites, is three quarters occupied with the addition of a tenant, orthodontist Louis J. Russo.

Collins the Architect. Philip Collins, designer of the New Jersey Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, was the architect. The exterior is unusual in that it is made of exposed, pre-cast structural concrete frame. The infilled panels of brick are spaced by bronze glass which cuts down on glare and heat. The same brick is used in the building interior.

An intriguing facet for a new Princeton building is the climate control system that has separate controls for each of six zones on each of the three floors. The doctors' examining rooms can be kept warmer than the waiting rooms; storage temperature can be governed and summer heat fended off at various temperatures. The combined heating and air conditioning unit operates from a 10-ton unit trucked from Oklahoma City and hoisted in one piece to the roof.

The use of exterior materials in the interior walls gives an increased unit to the building. Ken Walker of Walker-Gee Design Group, New York, went all out in the pediatricians' suite, blending low, labyrinthine walls in the central waiting room area with funhouse distored mirrors. "It's so workable, roomy and bright," Dr. Bierman says. The doctors' offices have huge blow-ups of informal photos of their children, a moving-day present from their wives.

The Collins, Uhl and Hoisington offices are prefaced by a wall mural of the Mondrian school with a crisscross of stainless steel wires. The design is by Arthur Schwartz, winner of an informal competition held within the firm.

The partnership has extended to planting the grounds, with the owners' families turning up one weekend to insert 3,000 ajuga plants on the rock ledges at the Mount Lucas Road side as ground cover.

Prof. W. E. Bonini, Princeton University geologist, came by one day during construction to see if "his" rocks were still there. He'd been bringing classes to see the rock strata for years. The rocks are still there, almost incorporated in the building itself.

A LETTER FROM L.B.J. To Princeton Man. Praise in print for Lyndon B. Johnson's courage has won for a Princeton businessman a signed letter of thanks from the President.

Charles R. Stahl, 548 Stockton Street, is a partner in the commodity market firm of M.E. Green Co., Inc. of 80 Wall Street. His Princeton office is 22 Chambers.

Writing in the October 18 issue of "Green's Commodity Market Comments," Mr. Stahl said:

"Whether or not President Johnson's judgment is right, only history will tell. But one thing is sure, that in pursuing his policy in a most unselfish way he has proven to be a better American than his critics."

"L.B.J. has stuck to his guns even at the cost of alienating large segments of the U.S. population; few political figures would do it. This courage and self denial — not egotism as others claim — have brought the President nothing but abuse."

Mr. Stahl reminded his readers that President Johnson himself recently observed that "if he were concerned only with his own popularity, he would not have been going about things the way he has and would not suggest higher taxes or more war or similar unpopular actions."

"And that is the crux of the matter: LBJ. is putting his own political future in jeopardy for the sake of his belief that he is doing the right thing for the United States."

Mr. Stahl sent the editorial to the President, and received a personal reply only two days later.

We opened anyway
It took courage, but in June of 1917, under clouds of war and a football loss to Harvard, the Princeton Building and Loan opened it's doors . . . (more precisely it's counter, since at the time we were located in the offices of the Princeton Bank and Trust). In the 50 years that followed Princeton's football teams have greatly improved. So has Princeton Savings. Win, lose or draw with Harvard, at Princeton Savings you get old-fashioned service and new-fangled top dividend rates.

ARCHITECTS HONORED

Three Named to Society. Three Princeton architects have been elected to corporate membership in the New Jersey Society of Architects, a region of the American Institute of Architects.

John M. Zvosec maintains offices at 212 Witherspoon Street. He is a partner in the firm of Mahony & Zvosec, architects and city planners.

Robert M. Engelbrecht heads the firm bearing his name at 12 Nassau Street. Its recent commissions include an athletic center for The Hun School and an office building for the Apex Corporation of Princeton. Mr. Engelbrecht is a national director of the Building Research Institute, a member of the Environmental Institute of the National Association of Home Builders and has served as executive director of two building research endowment funds.

Michael P. Erdman, whose offices are at 32 Nassau Street, is an associate in the firm of Alexander Ewing and Associates, headquartered in Philadelphia. Mr. Erdman heads the Princeton office.

NEWSMAN NAMED

By Radio Station WHWR. Walt Sutherland, a resident of Ewing Township, has been hired by Radio Station WHWR as news director. He was formerly news director of a West Palm Beach radio station where, for seven out of nine months, he was the top UPI news contributor in Florida.

Mr. Sutherland, a graduate of Western Reserve University in Cleveland, has been working in radio for 26 years. In 1962 he became the Caribbean correspondent for the British Broadcasting Company, covering the Dominican uprising, Communist guerilla activities in Guatemala and the Cuban exodus.

His experiences include the origination of a short wave broadcast while flying through the eye of a hurricane. He also is one of the few American newsmen to have had personal interviews with both Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

CONTRACT AWARDED

To Princeton University. The United States Army Aviation Material Laboratories has awarded a $226,000 aircraft contract to Princeton University. The contract will provide for the testing of special airplanes designed to take off and land vertically — like helicopters.

Princeton is especially suited for this kind of research because of its Dynamic Model Track. The track, which has been used for several years by the armed services for aircraft research, is a 750-foot horizontal track on which dynamically scaled models are tested under simulated free flight conditions.

Measurements are taken of the aircraft's attitude, speed and angular rates. These figures are combined with measurements of certain static forces to determine the equations which describe the motion of each model.

RCA HONORS TWO

Named as Fellows. Dr. Kern K. N. Chang, 91 Adams Drive, and Dr. Frederick H. Nicoll, 475 Prospect Avenue, have been named Fellows of the Technical Staff of RCA Laboratories. The title, similar to that used by universities, is given by the company in recognition of a record of sustained technical contribution in the past and of anticipated contribution in the future.

A native of China and graduate of the Central University of Nanking, Dr. Chang received his MSEE degree from Michigan in 1948 and his doctorate from the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn in 1954.

He has been a member of the RCA technical staff since 1948, doing research on magnetrons, traveling-wave tubes, beam focusing, and other microwave solid state devices. Twice a recipient of RCA achievement awards for outstanding research, Dr. Chang was presented with the 1967 David Sarnoff Outstanding Achievement Award in Science earlier this year.

In 1964 he was honored by the Chinese Institute of Engineers, New York, for his "outstanding contributions" in the field of electronic devices."

Dr. Nicoll, a native of Canada, received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Saskatchewan, and his doctorate from the University of Cambridge in England. He worked with RCA Manufacturing Co. in Camden until 1942, when RCA Laboratories was established.

Dr. Nicoll has done research in television, solid state display devices, light amplification and lasers. He has received five RCA Laboratories Achievement Awards for outstanding work, including the development of the first ultraviolet solid state laser.

In 1960 he was named a Fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers. Three years later he was awarded an RCA Fellowship for a year of study abroad at Cambridge.

FMC HONORS 39

For Service. Thirty-nine employees of the FMC Corporation, located on Route 1, were honored at a dinner at the Princeton Inn. James M. Hait, chairman of the board for FMC, was the guest speaker.

Those honored were: 25 years service, Richard W. Cummins and William G. Strunk; 20 years service, Ralph Bloom, Richard E. Elden, Lemon Ford, Robert R. Kindron, William H. Kibbel and Paul E. Willard; 15 years service, Clifford A. Erickson, Charles C. Fellows, Arthur S. Gurney, Donald F. Kreuz, Charles W. Raleigh and Frederick J. Rosebush; 10 years service, Harry M. Castrantas, Moignonis Gabliks, Ann Laurita, Andrew Lupichak, Ralph J. Meier, John O'Neill, Robert H. Schipmann, Michael H. Schmid, Charles Sterling and Frederick S. Vanliew.

RCA Library Opea

The David Sarnoff Library offers a unique opportunity for Princeton scholars to survey six decades of communications research. Books, documents, correspondence, instruments and models are on display, or available for research, that shed light on the evolution of computers and communications satellites from the earliest dream of wireless telegraphy.

Five quiet studyrooms provide good working conditions for scholars interested in reviewing the books and papers of the Library. Facilities are also provided for the presentation of taped and film material.

The research library is open weekdays and Saturdays for both researchers and casual inspection. Open between 10 and 3, the collection may be used freely by members of the RCA Laboratories staff. Students and scholars interested in using the library's facilities should write to the Curator, David Sarnoff Library, P.O. Box 432, Princeton, N. J.

Mr. Wilson, who plans to retire in February, joined the Boy Scout organization as an assistant Scout executive in Terre Haute, Ind. In The News

John A. McPhee of Drakes Corner Road is the author of a two-part "Profile" on the Pine Barrens of New Jersey, the first of which will appear in the current issue of The New Yorker. Illustrations are by Princeton artist James Graves of 268 Stockton Road.

Material for the 40,000-word article was compiled by Mr. McPhee over a period of several years during visits to the Pine Barrens, located in an area of about 1,000 square miles in the southern part of the state. Facets of life in the area the author covers range from hunting and berrying in the Barrens to the explosive type of fire which burns for days when a portion of the land is ignited.

Among the unusual facts Mr. McPhee reveals is the existence of a vast amount of pure water under the land about which he writes. The supply is equivalent, he reports, to 30 times all of the water in the reservoirs that supply New York City.

The article will be published in book form next February. Among other books Mr. McPhee has written is the biography of basketball player Bill Bradley, titled, "A Sense of Where You Are."

Sculptures of Dorothea S. Greenbaum, 104 Mercer Street, are on exhibit at the Spook Farm Gallery, Far Hills, through December.

Among the 20 pieces in stone, bronze, terra cotta, and hammered lead, are small marble and sea stone heads of children, animals and birds. Mrs. Greenbaum's sculpture is among the collections of the Whitney Museum, the Newark Museum, the Pennsylvania Academy, the New Jersey State Museum, and the Moscow Art Museum, as well as the private collections of Paul Mellon, Nelson Rockefeller and others

Four girls received a ranking in the 12-and-under. Darin Hicks, third, Kasey Constable, fifth; Vikki Austin, seventh, and Randy Gulick, honorable mention.

Others who received ranking were: 18-and-under, Elizabeth Hoffman and Lindsay Hicks; 16-and-under, Miss Hicks, Mary Hirst, Susan Davis, and Erika Dumpel; 14 and under, Terry Blake.

SECOND PLACE OPEN

If Tigers Can Tap Indians. Although it is a rarity when a Dartmouth-Princeton meeting in the final game of the season does not have a bearing on the outcome of the Ivy League race, a considerable degree of satisfaction awaits the winner of Saturday's football game in Palmer Stadium.

Only twice previously in 11 years has first place been determined beyond recall prior to the final game of the year. Yale, which accomplished the feat Saturday with its 29-7 defeat of the Tigers, first turned the trick the year the league became formal in 1956. Cosmo Iacavazzi's champions were equally successful three years ago.

Saturday's game, with upwards of 30,000 expected to be on hand for the 1:30 kickoff, will serve as an invitation to Dartmouth, Harvard and Princeton to earn the runner-up spot — no small achievement in a race which a powerful Yale team has dominated but which has been marked by at least one solid upset every week since early October. However, inasmuch as it would require the most astonishing result of the season for Harvard to defeat Yale, the winner of Saturday's game here will almost certainly achieve the distinction of finishing second.

Both the Indians and the Tigers come into the contest as losers, both seeking to reverse the trend of the past weekend's action. It may be more difficult for Dartmouth to do so . . . the Green has been in trouble ever since it nearly frittered away a 20-point lead against Harvard as far back as October 21.

THE ELUSIVE NO. 10: Brian Dowling, Yale quarterback, gained 148 yards, passed for two touchdowns and scored one to Elis' 29-7 triumph over Princeton. On this second-period play, he picked up nine yards, fumbled when tackled by Bill Gloyd (79) but Yale halfback Calvin Hill recovered. (TOWN TOPICS Photo by Bob Matthews).

Dartmouth In Difficulty

The overall blend of scoring power, often of the breakaway variety, and a solid defense that has been the hallmark of most of Bob Blackman's teams at Hanover is missing this season. After a second-chance field goal barely hailed the Indians out at Cambridge, they were trounced by Yale, 56 to 15; edged last-place Columbia, 13-7, only because the Lions could not score on three occasions when they were within 18 inches of the goal line; and then distributed a 14-3 lead last week to Cornell, bowing 24-21 as the defense crumbled in the final period.

Rebuilding problems have been plaguing the Green throughout the season — that and the fact that the squad is considerably smaller than Dartmouth teams have been in the past. Among the telltale figures are a starting offensive guard who weights only 176, a line which averages well under 200, and a fullback who can claim only 174 pounds.

The veteran Gene Ryzewicz will operate either at quarterback or halfback, depending on whether sophomore Bill Koenig gets the assignment at the former position. A halfback who averaged 7.5 yards rushing last season, Ryzewicz hasn't enjoyed the switch to quarterback this season — statistically, at least, since he has averaged but a scant two yards per carry to date. However, he has a passing mark of close to 50%, and when he and Koenig operate together it increases the Indians' potential through the air.

Captain Steve Luxford has found the transition in which he was involved more welcome. A defensive standout for two seasons, he was converted to the starting left half this fall and is the Indians' leading ground-gainer with a 4.2 average. Sophomore Bob Miakar has been a pleasant surprise as a ball carrier; either he or Bill Donovan will start with Luxford at this position. Dave Boyle, the 174-lb. fullback, does much of the blocking in the V formation but has shown well as a running back despite his size.

QUICK LOOK AT DARTMOUTH

OFFENSE: Two backs, Bill Koenig and Gene Ryzewicz, pass well but running game is somewhat below Indians' usual standards.

DEFENSE: Inconsistent. Decimated by Yale, yielded three touchdowns in fourth quarter to both Harvard and Cornell.

CHIEF ASSET: Overall football know-how instilled by Blackman regime, blended with better-than-average ability to defense the single wing.

CHIEF PROBLEM: Unusual lack (for Dartmouth) of top-light personnel.

TYPE OF OFFENSE: V formation.

Graduation losses struck heavily at the defensive secondary, and the line has also undergone numerous personnel changes since the Indians finished in a tie for the 1966 Ivy title with Harvard and Princeton. Despite its apparent problems, however, Dartmouth has the potential to win Saturday without having the result rank as more than the mildest of upsets. Both the Green's success in Palmer Stadium in the past 15 years and Princeton's problems in rebounding after a loss to Yale are factors favoring the New Hampshire invaders.

Recent Edge to Dartmouth. If Yale fans were deliriously happy over the fact that their team won in Palmer Stadium for the first time since 1959, the record book shows that Princetonians have gone almost as long since the Tigers last defeated Dartmouth here. A 7-0 victory over the Indians in 1960 was the last recorded on home soil — and the 37-7 triumph at Hanover three years ago still leaves the Orange and Black on the short end of a 5-2 series count in the current decade.

Working further against the Tigers is their traditional problem in beating Dartmouth after the emotional let-down caused by a loss to Yale. Saturday's defeat also cost further personnel losses — end Steve Pierce, a fine pass receiver for three seasons, will not play again after severely wrenching his knee and leaving the game on a stretcher.

Lee Hitchner, who had started 28 consecutive games since breaking into the lineup for the opener as a sophomore, saw action only because he was captain, and his knee injury will keep him well below par for Saturday's contest. Tailback Bob Weber is likewise beset with continuing knee trouble and does not figure to be at top form after a layoff of nearly a month.

Only Five Seniors Starters. Expectations are that only five of the 22 players on the first two platoons will be members of the Class of 1968, a figure smaller than any within memory — although the variables from year to year between one-team and two-platoon football make comparisons difficult. Nonetheless, the losses from graduation will be few — on offense, with Pierce out of action, all 11 starters are juniors or sophomores. Defensively, the seniors scheduled to start are Charlie Bay at end; Lee Hitchner, middle guard; Craig Stone, linebacker; Dick Sherlock and Bruce Wayne, defensive backs.

A second-place finish in the Ivy League and a 7-2 record that will rank as for more appealing than a 6-3 mark are within Princeton's reach Saturday. A performance that need do no more than match the Tigers' potential will achieve them both.

THE PRESSURE TOLD

Tigers' Strategy Cracked. As often happens when a superior team meets an opponent which can achieve an upset if it does not bend under pressure, the weaker team was forced into errors by the sheer weight of the confrontation. Trailing by only 14-7 in the second quarter, and proud owner of a 64-yard touchdown drive in the early going that none of the Elis' previous four opponents could match, the Tigers' field generalship inexplicably came a part at the seams.

Their first blunder was a pass play called on their own ten, on which tailback Rich Bracken ran so far back that he was tackled in the end zone for a safety. That put the Tigers two touchdowns away from a chance to take the lead.

Then, with Princeton again in possession well back in its own territory, repeated calls for a time out stopped the game so that the Tigers were forced to punt when they could easily have run out the clock. Bracken's kick was blocked by a flagrant defensive lapse that allowed middle guard Dick Williams to shoot the gap untouched. The Blue took over the Princeton 30; two plays later and with only 14 seconds left, it had its third TD and an unsurmountable 22-7 halftime lead.

"The final two minutes in the first half killed us," Dick Colman commented after the game. "If we had come back trailing by 14-7, MacBean's kickoff return to the Yale 23 would have had us in a great spot to tie it up again right there."

Fooled at Harvard by the play on which the quarterback flips to a halfback and races downfield for a touchdown pass, the Tigers bit on the same ball in the early going against Yale. Quarterback Brian Dowling fed Calvin Hill on a pitchout that swept right, ran deep to the left and had only a lone pursuer when he took a perfect pass for a 60-yard scoring play.

Princeton retaliated immediately, Bracken running or passing 11 times in the 14 play drive and scoring from two yards out on a jaunt around right end with Ellis Moore getting the key block. Five plays later, however, Dowling connected with end Bruce Weinstein for a 33-yard TD and the Yales then took advantage of Princeton miscues just before the half ended to wrap matters up conclusively.

Rain in the second quarter made the field slippery for the rest of the afternoon but did not play a part in the outcome of the game. The Blue scored the lone TD of the last two quarters at 1:50 of the final period, Dowling passing to Hill, who outreached Tiger defender Tim Garven in the end zone.

This is an impressive Yale team, one that has boundless confidence in itself and the size and speed to outmatch everything the Ivy League can offer this season. It does not, however, appear to be the equal of the Ellis' last championship team which went 9 to 0 in 1960, or of Dartmouth's unbeaten entry in 1962, or of the Princeton outfit in 1964 which also won them all.

Comparisons aside, the Blue figures very clearly to be the team to beat again in 1968. There are a couple of key losses on the offensive line and on the defensive platoon, but most of the backfield — primarily Dowling and Hill — returns intact. As the man said, that's pretty gooo for openers.

IN FINAL GAME FOR PHS: Bill Walstad (left) who threw three touchdown passes in the Colonia game, and Jerry Fiabane, 210-lb. guard, are among the 22 seniors who played their last game Saturday against Madison. Walstad alternated with Thom Yoder at tailback, while Fiabane was an outstanding performer on defense.

MADISON UPSETS PHS

Little Tigers Fiolsh 7-2. The sun came out during the second half but it didn't shine on the visiting Princeton High School football team. Madison (6-3) made its two touchdowns hold up on a series of fourth-down stands Saturday to upend PHS, 12 9.

"It was a pretty even game," said PHS coach Dick Wood afterwards. "We went well at times and they went well at times. We got in scoring position often enough but we made mistakes and we just couldn't push it over."

Playing in the rain in the first half, PHS scored first in the opening quarter. Matt Alexander recovered a Spartan fumble on the home team's 15. Three plays later, Houston Webber scored from the 12. It was Webber's 12th TD of the season and one has to go way back to the last time any Little Tiger has scored as often. Chris Gartner kicked the extra point—his 22nd in 26 attempts.

Madison scored later in the same period on a 25-yard pass, one of two it was to complete all afternoon out of 12 tries. The PAT failed and PHS still led by one. Madison went ahead, however, in the second period on a one-yard plunge by Ron Nemshick.

PHS tallied its final two points in the last quarter when Ralph Davis, a senior tackle playing his last game, pulled down Madison's Hardy Britt in the end zone. Wood had used mostly seniors throughout the contest.

The second half for Princeton was largely one of missed opportunities. Buzz Taylor ran the second half opening kickoff back to the Madison 14, but his teammates couldn't push the ball across. Twice more PHS was knocking and twice more it was stopped on fourth down—once by a half foot on the six-yard stripe. In addition, PHS fumbled four times in the second half and although it recovered each one, the miscues stalled drives.

Madison Leads in First Downs. On one of his team's penetrations, Wood reported he was tempted to send in Gartner to try for a field goal which would have tied it 12-all but instead the Little Tigers went for the yardage and missed it. Madison held a sizable edge in first downs, 14 to 6.

PHS completed seven of 16 aerials but had three intercepted. Even more damaging were two roughing the kicker penalties called against it in the second half.

Wood later cited the defensive and offensive play of Tom Butterfoss, last year's all-everything tackle who missed most of this season with a leg injury. Butterfoss was in for all but two or three plays.

He also praised the defensive play of Ron McEwen and the running of Taylor. "Although Buzz didn't handle the ball that much, I though he was the best ball carrier on the field," said Wood.

Wood added that "on the whole, I think we probably played a better game than we did last week against Notre Dame." This was the second meeting between the two schools. PHS won the first and they will play each other once more.

The setback prevented Wood from attaining an 8-1 record, which would have been his best in his six years but he commented that he was still "very satisfied" with the way the season went. "You can't complain with a record of 7-2," he said. Last year PHS also finished 7-2. (In both seasons, PHS outscored its opponents by a wide margin. This fall, it compiled 212 points to 76 for the opposition.)

"We're happy with that," continued Wood. "We're even a little happier than last year because we beat all the teams in this area. These away games don't mean as much." Both Madison and Perth Amboy, Princeton's other conqueror, are outside Mercer County.

Leading the Little Tigers in scoring behind Webber's 12 were Taylor, seven touchdowns; Jay Springer, six (all on passes); and Charlie Madden, three. Nick Arcaro and Bill Mendaz scored one each.

The Last Game. Seniors playing their last game for PHS are centers Karl Stange and Al Perone; guards Guy Moody, Joe LaPlaca, Jerry Fiabane, John Panzer and Harry Rosso; tackles Tom Butterfoss, Gary Everesen, Walter Goodale and Ralph Davis; ends Jay Springer, Nick Ryan and Bill Mendaz.

In the backfield, wingbacks Houston Webber and Tom Taylor; quarterbacks Fred Fox and Ron McEwen; fullback Charles Madden; wingbacks Thom Yoder, Matt Alexander and Bill Walstad.

SEASON ENDS FOR PDS

With Less to Morristown. Waging a losing battle against both the weather and a stubborn Morristown Prep goalline defense, the Princeton Day School football team closed out its first season of varsity competition Saturday afternoon with a 19-0 loss. It was a frustrating end to what, with a few breaks, might have been a better year for the Panthers.

Playing under dark and rainy skies on a field that was little better than a quagmire, PDS let scoring opportunities slip away in the first, third and fourth quarters. Three times it drove down inside the Morristown 10-yard line, only to lose the ball on a fumble, interception or downs.

Taking the opening kickoff, the Panthers drove smartly down field using mainly off tackle slants, and it appeared that they might be on the way to a victory in their final contest. But the condition of the field ruled out end sweeps, and once inside the ten, the sturdy Morristown defense bottled up the middle effectively, ultimately recovering a fumble to stop the drive.

In the second period, Morristown launched a drive of its own culminating in the first score of the game, and led 7-0. Just before the half, a defensive lapse cost PDS another six points, when a blocked punt rolled dead on its two-yard line. Morristown scored easily and led 13-0 at the intermission.

Territorial Advantage. A change into fresh uniforms during halftime brought the Panthers out with renewed vigor in the second half and they battled Morristown in its own territory for most of the remaining time. However, a second drive near the Morristown goal stalled when PDS ran out of downs, and a final attempt in the fourth quarter ended with a pass interception on the two.

A 73-yard run on an off-tackle play gave Morristown its final score, and sixth victory in eight games. For PDS, the final slate stands at 2-6 — nothing to cheer about, but perhaps not indicative of the squad's real measure.

With but two exceptions, St. Bernards and Englewood, PDS battled teams not only bigger and stronger, but also leading or near the top in their leagues. Hun, St. Andrews, Chestnut Hill, Montclair and Morristown all had excellent seasons. Pingry, which finished 4-3-1, was out of PDS's league to begin with.

The team's spirit never diminished as the realities of the first season of varsity competition became apparent. "They played their hearts out," commented head coach Dan Barren, adding that the team never had a morale problem even in practice.

Wandelt's Loss Hurt. The most unfortunate break of the season was the loss of fullback Sandy Wandelt, who was sorely missed not only for his running but also for his outstanding ability as a linebacker. Wandelt's shoulder injury in a pre-season scrimmage forced him to the sidelines for the entire season.

Barren already has his sights set on next year and reports that a good nucleus of players will be returning, led by halfback Craig Page. Gone however, will be backs Bill Rigot and John Clagborn, ends Rick Ross and Rich Raines, and defensive back Jon Veen.

Page and linemen Ashby Adams and Keith Bash will captain the Panthers next year, when every returning member of this year's squad will have the advantage of one season's experience of varsity football, something no PDS player had this fall.

HUN BLANKS PENNINGTON

Ends Season Undefeated. Visiting Hun School scored once in the first half and twice in the third period Saturday to defeat Pennington School, 19-0. The victory was its sixth and enabled the Red and Black to finish undefeated; its only two blemishes were ties with Perkiomen and George School.

All of Hun's scores came on short runs. Tom Hewel produced the first and Mark Short and Dick Mate the second and third TDs. "We stuck to the ground and just ground it out," said Hun coach Hawley Waterman, who reported the field was in such poor playing condition as a result of a heavy rain in the first half that Hun tried only one or two passes all afternoon.

As in all its previous games this season the Hun defense was masterful. The visitors intercepted three passes and recovered a pair of fumbles. The Red and Black's beefy line did not allow Pennington a single first down.

For Waterman, it was his second undefeated season since taking over at Hun 12 years ago. His first was in 1964.

tered the game knowing that it had lost even a chance for a tie for the Penn-Jersey championship because on the previous day George School had clinched the crown by defeating Bryn Mawr, 13-0. Just a week ago Hun and George had battled to a 7-7 tie.

Those who like to indulge in such things can point out that an offside penalty cost Hun sole ownership of the title. In the decisive game with Hun, George missed on the conversion try and trailed, 7-8, but Hun was offside. On its second try George converted.

Chances are Hun may win it outright next year. With the material he has returning, Waterman's 13th season should be anything but unlucky.

Back at end are Don Silverson, Mike Rossi and Dick Embley. Silverson was probably Hun's top receiver this fall.

At tackle, among those returning are Dow Davies, 257 pounds; Jim Costiora, 210 pound Elliott Lieberman, "a fine prospect"; and a 230-pound freshman, Doug Whitehead, who Waterman said "reminds me so much of Paul Savidge." High praise indeed. "I don't see how he can miss," added Waterman.

As if this weren't enough, Waterman said that he has another fine tackle moving up in Tom McMichael from Princeton. He's had a very good year on the junior varsity," commented Waterman.

Maggio, Townsend Back. Returning at the two guard slots are Doug Townsend, 200 pounds, and Pete Maggio — "which sort of makes it tough on everyone else," said Waterman. "You just can't find a better pair of guards anywhere." Townsend consistently led the team in tackles, while the lighter Maggio was outstanding as a lineback on defense where he led in pass interceptions. Al Camp is another returning guard.

Mort Donnelly, second string this year, will move up to a starting role at center.

In the backfield, Waterman will again greet Dick Mate, an explosive runner from Trenton, and a setback in 142-pound Steve Peters, who in his first chance to play for the injured Mark Short, midway this season, scored three touchdowns, two on long runs. Stanley Donald the team's fine punter this year should come into his own at fullback. At quarterback there is Mike Maguire.

Maguire, a sophomore, was the star of his freshman team and Waterman said that "we are sure that Maguire will do the job for us." Another Princetonian whom Waterman said he expected a lot from in the backfield is 205-pound Jim Kepliner.

"Yes," he said, "I think we can make a team out of that material."

Linemen playing their last game for Hun are Bob Angle, Duke Chute, Stuart Cohen, Rees Day, Jeff Diamond, Al Flesh, John Haffner, Toby Laughlin, Bob McPherson, Scott McCollough, Tony Tourart and Irvin Urken. Senior backs are Ken Kelly and Mark Short, this year's co-captains, John Myers and Tom Hewel.

MORE THAN 70 REPORT For PHS Basketball Practice. "Everybody starts equal. Everyone's got to earn his position. This way every boy knows he's got a crack at it. I don't care who they are or where they played last year. This way you don't get into trouble."

This is just one facet of the no-nonsense, hard-work philosophy of Larry Ivan, new basketball coach at Princeton High School, who promises to rescue the Little Tigers from the basketball doldrums and lead them into a new era of winning. Ivan succeeds Tony Borzok who had guided PHS on the court since 1953.

The enthusiasm that Ivan has generated well before the start of the first game on December 6 is plain to see. Whereas Borzok often had trouble getting 20 players to come out, Ivan reported he has about 70 varsity and junior varsity candidates. "And this doesn't include the football players who will give it a try. The turnout has been tremendous." Such things are unheard of during the PHS roundball season.

Gone from last year's team are its two leading scorers, Tom Wood and Rich Volz. One of the returning five lettermen — Marty Hines — has moved away. The four remaining are Jeff Frangos, Al Morley, Bob Upchurch and Thom Yoder. However, Ivan made it clear that under his policy of everyone having to earn a starting berth, it was touch and go whether any of these would wind up in the first five.

Will Appoint Co-Captains. Ivan added that he will appoint a defensive captain and offensive captain before the start of the first game. "They will be appointed, not elected. An election tends to be a social contest; I want boys who will be thinking out there."

From his abundance of candidates, Ivan mentioned three sophomores who have looked good in early practice which started November 1. They are Jeff Haring (5-11), Ed Beadle (5-10), and John Schmidt (5-10).

"These kids are tough and very good prospects. Put them together and they'll eat you up alive. When I look at them now and then think of them as seniors — wow!"

The fact that all three were under six feet didn't bother Ivan in the least. "Height," he commented, "has never bothered or impressed me. Some kids are over six feet and jump more than an inch off the floor. I look for boys who really move. To get rebounds out of ball you've got to move. If you stand, you'll be a loser."

Two juniors singled out by Ivan are Pete Wyckoff, 160 and 6-4 (Pete's on the bench side) and Bill Shepley, 6-1. "Pete didn't look like anything when he first came out, but he's done very well. He's been a pleasant surprise."

"Bill has really hustled. He's not very big or strong but he's going to develop, especially if he doesn't lose his mental attitude. I look for mental attitude as well as physical ability.

"The game's too quick today. A boy has got to be thinking out there. A mental lapse could cost the ball game."

A senior singled out by Ivan was Gyles Smith, 5-9 senior transfer student from the midwest. "He hustles," said Ivan.

Practice At Night. For the first three weeks Ivan has scheduled practices in the evening from 6:30 to 8, six nights a week, and all through Christmas. "It has to be that way," said Ivan, "if you want any degree of success. It takes, many, many hours."

The practices are closed to outsiders — and grueling. The emphasis is on running and superb conditioning. Said Ivan, "We've lost 25 to 30 already who can't stand the pace. He mentioned one boy who quit after two minutes. We'll do more in 18 minutes than most clubs will do in 30 to 45 minutes. "We'll be a running team. You can't play basketball any other way."

Scrimmage Wednesday. On Wednesday at North Burlington, the Blue and White will engage in the first of three preseason scrimmages. A second with New Brunswick will be held at New Brunswick on Friday, and the last here November 30 against Hightstown.

Asked how the practice sessions have gone so far, Ivan replied that he was very happy with the progress that has been shown. "We're going to surprise some people this year," he added. Reminded that PHS won only six last season and lost 16, including 11 of its last 13, Ivan answered with the same assurance that Tuesday follows Monday. "We'll do better than that."

NEW MAN IN THE JOB: Larry Ivan is starting his first year as Princeton High School basketball coach.

New Staff. Exiting along with Borzok were his assistants, George Povilaitis and Harry Zoll. Assisting Ivan are Archie Freeman, a PHS graduate in 1961 and former star quarterfoor for the Little Tiger nine. The Springfield College graduate will coach the freshman team.

Handling the junior varsity squad will be Earl Osmes, a graduate of Trenton State College. Earl graduated from Hamilton High School in 1960 where he excelled in football and baseball.

"They are supposed to be my assistants, but I consider us equal," said Ivan.

It's been more years than most people can remember when PHS last won any title in basketball. Ivan is out to change all that. And all it takes is 10 minutes talking with him to come away a believer.

The 1967-68 schedule. Dec. 6, Ewing, away; 12, Frankline; 15, Trenton, away; 20, Plainfield, away; 22, Cathedral; 27-28, Suburban Tournament, Notre Dame High School gym; Jan. 2, Notre Dame, away; 9, Steinert; 12, Lawrenceville, away; 16, Somerville; 19, Hamilton, away; 23, Madison, away; 25, Ewing; 30, Lawrence; Feb. 2, Steinert, away; 6, Trenton; 9, Bridgewater-Raritan, away; 13, Peddie; 16, Hamilton; 20, Cathedral, away; and 23, St. Anthony.

IVAN ERA BEGINS. "You've Got to Have Pride." In five years of coaching school basketball teams here, he compiled a record of 132 wins, 14 losses. His YMCA All Stars, a team comprised of Princeton High School boys who didn't make the varsity team, in five years did not lost a single game in 62, winning five Mercer County Championships along the way.

Who is he? Larry Ivan, a 6-3 former member (for three years) of the Trenton Colonials in the Eastern Basketball League, who is the new head coach of the Princeton High School basketball team.

Almost from the beginning, basketball has played a large part in his life. He played it while he was in the service. He played it at his alma mater, the University of Oklahoma where Ivan and his teammates twice — both in overtime — upset Kansas led by Wilt Chamberlain. "I jumped against Chamberlain," recalled Ivan. "I didn't get the tap, but I jumped against him."

After graduation from Oklahoma in 1958 he taught basketball at the John Witherspoon School until 1965. "All the years I was at Witherspoon, I never had a losing season and I don't expect to start this year," he said.

He taught the sport in the summer when he was in charge of the Wednesday night summer basketball playground league. Some of the kids he taught on the playgrounds are members of the present high school squad.

And of course he led his YMCA All Stars to that incomparable 62-0 record coming from behind by as many as 25 points to win.

At PHS, Ivan has taken over every phase — from the way

3 interesting ideas on where to place your new Trimline® telephone

On the side of a cabinet in a crowded kitchen. Just place it where you can reach the handset. Pick up the phone . . . and the lighted pushbuttons come to you.

On a lower shelf of a table. You save space on the table top. And there's another advantage to this new phone: to make a second call, you just tap the recall button.

Under a shelf or kitchen cabinet. With a Trimline phone, as long as you can reach the handset, you can use the pushbuttons. And the cord is 18" longer.

The ingeniously designed Trimline phone can be put in places that weren't practical for phones before. The Touch-Tone® pushbuttons have been incorporated into the handset. You don't have to see the phone base to make a call, and the Trimline wall phone fits almost anywhere.

Each Trimline phone costs just pennies a day. There's no extra charge for color. And if you want Touch-Tone service, the additional Touch-Tone charge covers all phones on your line.

Think about your own home. You may think of several unusual but handy spots to place Trimline phones. To order yours, in either wall or table models, just call your Telephone Business Office.

Above all he has imparted a sense of pride. Even the coaching staff has new distinctive uniforms which they wear to every practice. "You've got to have pride," he says.

There's No Other Way. Because he is also an assistant football coach Dick Wood—Ivan's junior varsity team is 5-2-1, including a 40-6 victory over Notre Dame in its most recent game — Ivan for the first three weeks has been forced to hold his basketball practice sessions at night. Asked if this doesn't cut into his free time at home he replied, "If you show you're interested in him, they'll respond. They'll come out to practice in a blizzard. There's no other way. If you don't care, they won't either."

One example of Ivan's "care" is a two-page memorandum of general rules for every basketball candidate. There are eight rules covering equipment, four on schedules and 12 governing rules. One tells the boys not to keep their parents waiting if they are being transported by car—"remember they also have other commitments."

Being an excellent student, he says is another, and an excellent basketball player go hand in hand only through hard work and dedication can this be accomplished. He ends by advising each boy to study his rules and "take this list home so your parents will know what we are striving for."

His philosophy of the game is simple. "Basketball is 90 percent hustle and 10 percent ability. If you hustle, you'll win. That's all it takes."

The same dedication and confidence — and hustle — that Ivan imparts as a coach, he expects in return from every player. "Any boy who doesn't hustle won't last long on my team," he says. One senses that he has stirred the boys into such a fervor already that they would walk through fire for him.

Of such things are championships forged. The Ivan era at Princeton High has hustled off to a fast start.

PRINCETONIANS STAR

In Film Endeavor. The Mantell children, Steve, 10, Mike, 8, David, 6 and Eva, 4, are the central characters in two new films written, produced and directed for National Educational Television by their father, Harold Mantell. "Secrets of the Desert" will be shown in three parts on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 6 to 6:30 and "Toddlers and Indians" will be shown Friday at the same time —both on channel 12, New York.

"Secrets of the Desert," which has already been premiered at a reception of the Chilean Embassy in Washington, D. C., is a 78 minute, 16 mm color/sound film. It narrates the adventures of Steve and Mike Mantell in the driest place on earth the remote Atacama Desert of Northern Chile.

Narrating part of the film is Paul de Castro, a 14-year old native of Columbia, who currently resides in Princeton. The film, in addition to surveying the desolation of the Atacama landscape, includes an interview with Eduardo Frei Montalva, president of Chile.

The other film, "Toddlers and Indians," is set in the Peruvian Andes. A little boy and his sister, played by David and Eva Mantell, give a child's eye view of the age-old customs and living conditions of Peruvian Indians.

Mr. Mantell is also the creator of a third film, "Thornton Wilder," which outlines the life and work of the three-time Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright and novelist. The film includes a sequence on Mr. Wilder's years as a teacher at the Lawrenceville School. It will be shown Wednesday evening from 11 to 11:30 and the following Sunday from 5 to 5:30.

Mr. Cooper has works that have been accepted for inclusion in the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the National Academy of Design, the Library of Congress and the New York Public Library.

PUBLIC TO LEARN MORE

About Alcoholism. Alcoholism is a disease that the American Medical Association ranks third among the nation's health problems. Understanding that alcoholism is a disease that can be treated plays a decisive role in getting the alcoholic to accept help.

To further the American public's understanding of this disease, the National Council on Alcoholism is once again sponsoring an Alcoholism Information Week - beginning Sunday, November 26. An attempt will be made through the annual education campaign to focus attention on the symptoms and warning signs of this disability.

If a community accepts an alcoholic as a sick person deserving help, the first step has been taken toward convincing the alcoholic, or potential alcoholic, to obtain treatment before he has lost his job, health, family and friends. For free consultation or information, visit or call the Alcoholism Information Center, 575 Ewing Street, 924-0788, between 10 and 4.

News Of The CHURCHES

COED CHOIR SINGS

In University Chapel. Twen by young women have been incorporated into the traditionally all-male ranks of the Princeton University Chapel Choir.

"It has had a wonderful impact on rehearsals," says Carl Weinrich, the choir director and organist.

The women include graduate students, undergraduates from other colleges who are studying at Princeton for a year as participants in the critical languages program and the wives of graduate students.

The presence of women has proved a major asset during the campaign for new members, which produced far more undergraduates than the 35 voices needed by the choir. "This allowed us to be more selective than before," Professor Weinrich notes. "It turned down some I would have taken before, and with the improved quality, we learn faster and sound better."

He first had the idea of adding women to the choir last year, as he pondered the vocal potential of university-related women. President Robert F. Goheen and Dean Ernest Gordon gave the suggestion enthusiastic endorsement. Professor Weinrich canvassed the University and was amazed by the response.

Among the advantages has been the opportunity to revamp the repertory. As an all-male group, the choir was limited in its selections. "Now we work on music from every century, from the 16th to the 20th," Professor Weinrich states.

The choir director also finds that the present mixture of almost twice as many men — 35 to 20 — "does not prove to be a bad thing. In most choirs women outnumber men, but we are able to produce a much more sonorous sound, for the women can hold their own."

With a more diversified repertory, more talent and a vocal balance, he finds nothing but advantages in the new choir. "Women are an important part of music-making . . . Besides, I am not aware of any men in the choir who have any objections."

EBAN SEES PEACE

As Only Solution. Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban asserted his country's resolve to retain its new territory and called for a negotiated peace here Sunday as the only solution for peaceful coexistence between Israel and her Arab neighbors. He spoke to a crowd of 2,400 in Princeton University's Dillon Gymnasium.

"Israel's policy today is a firm resolve never, never, never to return to the danger and vulnerability from which we have emerged," Mr. Eban said. "The only political and juridical possibility available is a full, formal peace."

The Israeli statesman labled suggestions that Israel retreat from the cease-fire lines without a treaty "ridiculous" and "irrational." "This is the only war in history where the victor has sued for peace, while the vanquished has asked for unconditional surrender," he said.

"This is a supreme national desire worthy of every effort and any compromise Israel has avoided a catastrophe that would have weighed forever on the conscience of mankind in resisting destruction," Mr. Eban said.

Mr. Eban also criticized countries such as the United States, Britain and France, which, he claimed, fell short in their commitments to Israel when the fighting broke out in June. "All professed external support for Israel turned out to be fragile or illusory," he said. "Great power commitments were given the most restricted interpretation and France and Britain fled from their commitments."

DELIVERANCE REVIVAL. Evangelist Drucilla Carter (left) will conduct a "Deliverance Revival" at the Morning Star Church of God in Christ, 43½ Birch Avenue, beginning this Sunday and continuing through Sunday, December 10. Elder C. Guidine (right) is pastor. Services will be held each day at noon and 7:45 p.m., with prayer for the sick at each service.

Clergy taking part include the Rev. C. George Fitzgerald, Princeton Hospital chaplain; Dean Ernest L. Gordon of Princeton University Chapel; the Rev. Cursley Guidry of Morning Star Church of God in Christ, and the Rev. James R. Whittemore of Trinity Episcopal Church.

WHY NOT SLIP INTO SOMETHING COMFORTABLE? in the way of a traditional Cape Cod with 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, large living room with fireplace, family-dining room with second fireplace, well planned kitchen with comfortable dining area, huge panelled playroom, all-purpose room or studio. Fine Princeton Township 3/4 acre within walking distance of nearly everything. Built when walls were plaster and roofs slate. Priced in the mid-$50's
THE ONLY LAKE FRONT HOUSE CURRENTLY ON THE MARKET: is also one of the most interesting anywhere on Carnegie's shore. Built of cedar and glass and arranged on two levels (both of which open to the lawn) so that every room shares the same marvelous tree-framed view of the Lake, are living room and study, each with fireplace, dining room, equipped kitchen, 3 bedrooms and 2 baths. Centrally air-conditioned and carpeted throughout. Quite rare. $75,500
$34,500 WILL BUY A LOT OF GOOD FAMILY LIVING: Consider this 11/2 story just north of Princeton. On the ground floor, there are entrance hall, living room, dining room, excellent kitchen with ample breakfast space, handsome family room with fireplace and sliding glass doors to brick terrace, 3 bedrooms and 2 full baths. Full second floor with plumbing and heating roughed in could be finished for a thousand purposes. Basement and garage. Swimming pool is focal point of 3/4 acre with trees and all city utilities. We don't think it can be beat at the price.
MOORE STREET BUILDING LOT: Just down the street from the Princeton High School, believe it or not, we have a small lot, edged with trees and served by all utilities, which can be yours for $10,500
NOT YOUR DISH OF TEA? Well, if you have a large family and/or don't like contemporary houses then we'll have to concede that this may not be for you. But if you're a young couple with flair or older and thinking of retirement but want a little luxury and plenty of space for entertaining, then let us show you this elegant one story in its Princeton Township wildgarden. Large high ceilinged living room with fireplace opens off stone floored foyer. Dream kitchen adjoins comfortable, informal sitting-dining room. 3 bedrooms, 2 baths. Two car garage. Central air-conditioning. Swimming pool. $59,500
THREE BUILDING LOTS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE: As you know, its a rare building lot in Princeton Township that can be bought for less than $25,000, but we can offer you three with all public utilities and within walking distance of all schools and shopping for the surprising price of $22,800. Of course, they're small, but they're all buildable and would easily support houses priced for sale in the low $30's. If you're a builder in search of Princeton land, don't pass these up.

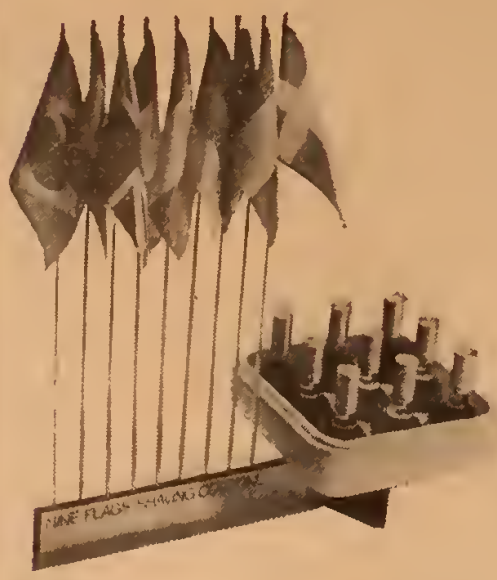
We wanted to import the world's one most exciting men's shaving cologne.

We failed.



We tried our dorndest, but the best we could do was narrow it down to nine.

So we took the whole works. Made NINE shaving colognes from essences imported from nine countries. Put them all in one package.

And ended up with an international collection of shaving colognes we call Nine Flags. Nine great scents. Each one as different as the girls of Sweden are from, say, the girls of France.

But what can a man do with nine that he can't do with one?

He can get out of a rut. Vary the routine. Switch off when he wants something with more pizzazz. Throw his girl off guard with a change of scent. Or with a blend of several scents he mixed himself.

No single shaving cologne can make that statement.
